The Rev. Fred Riccio, his mother, Nettie, and father, Frank.

Ordained priest

Bishop Begin's last project included a Pleasanton man

The ailing bishop had a smile for each one of the young men who stood before him, and as each set of parents approached the altar with the sacrificial gifts, he gripped their hands in a shake and said, "Congratulations, you have a fine son."

That moment was the highlight of a lifetime for Mr. and Mrs. Frank Riccio of Pleasanton. The occasion was last week's ordination of five priests of the Roman Catholic Diocese of Oakland — among them, Fred Riccio who grew up in Pleasanton.

The ordination was the last official appearance for Bishop Floyd L. Begin who died three days later after a lingering illness. Earlier, at a private dinner for the five candidates to the priesthood, the bishop had confided that the sole reason he had delayed retirement until May was the ordination. Perhaps the approaching event had sustained him. The ordination of a priest has always been a solemn church occasion for Roman Catholics. Today, with the rapidly-expanding Catholic population in prime growth areas such as the East Bay, and the commonly-observed drop in the number of priestly candidates, an ordination takes on even more significance.

The young Fred Riccio is himself a rare phenomenon. He spent most of his boyhood in Pleasanton and attended St. Augustine's Catholic Church there. He then was educated at seminaries entirely within the Bay Area — St. Joseph's in Los Altos (secondary school), St. Patrick's College and St. Patrick's Seminary, both in Menlo Park.

He chose to become a priest of the Diocese of Oakland where he has been assigned to St. Raymond's Catholic Church in Dublin. The Rev. Riccio is the first local resident to be ordained and sent to work in a local parish.

In 1963 the Rev. John Lima from the Azore Islands was ordained at Old St. Augustine's Church in Pleasanton and assigned to the Oakland diocese. The Rev. Robert Silva of Pleasanton, ordained in 1965, is now assigned to duties in Stockton.

Valley churches will welcome the new Rev. Riccio in two Mass celebrations this weekend. He will say a 5 p.m. Mass for the congregation at St. Augustine's Church in Pleasanton Saturday, April 30. His first Mass at St. Raymond's in Dublin will be said Sunday, May 1 at noon.

Up to 34% hikes

Assessments early, here come appeals

April must be God's vengeance on taxpayers.

Two weeks ago they saw just how much the federal and state governments bit them in income taxes.

This week they got a hint of the ominous property tax bill they'll have to pay before the year is out.

When it rains, it pours?

Property assessments are in the mail, and the news, for some, is frightening. But it's tempered with the best wishes of the Alameda County Assessor's office, and some legal channels that may be taken to avoid the bite.

By state law — a reaction to the Wolden tax assessment scandal of the mid-60s — all property is taxed at 25 per cent of its full cash value as of March 1 of the year.

That means the assessor examines neighboring housing sales and determines your home to be worth, say, $60,000 on the market.

The "assessed value" is 25 per cent of the market value. And it is the "assessed value," in this case $15,000, along with the composite tax rate that is used to figure your tax bill.

How to fight it pg. 6

Notifications have gone to about two-thirds of the 300,000 pieces of property in the county. The balance will be sent out by June 1, according to Chief Deputy Assessor Marshall S. Zaidel.

If they seem early this year, it's because the assessor's office is trying to avoid the bloodletting it feels will follow mass petitions to the county's Assessment Appeals Board.

As yet there are no specific indicators for value hikes in the Valley, but the assessor's office warns the increases will range from zero to 34 per cent throughout the county.

Some farm lands in the Valley, hit heavily by the drought, will go down in value, according to Zaidel.

The notices were mailed early this year to give property owners an extra month to protest to his office, Zaidel said.

The homeowner too often waits until the assessment rolls are officially "posted" July 1. After that, the only recourse is the Assessment Appeals Board.

See 'Tax,' pg. 6

Some philosophical, others 'astounded'

"I didn't know we were millionaires," Lois Bouscal said when she opened her "Notice of New Values," the Alameda County Assessor's estimate of her Stanford Way home in Livermore.

"We're still in shock," said Emily Kent. Her Davona Drive home in Dublin jumped $6,000 in value according to the assessor's office. "It was ridiculous."

"We got out the calculator immediately and were appalled." She's thinking about fighting it.

Dublin banker Tim Baldwin's condominium in Livermore shot up 25 per cent to $42,000, but he's philosophical about it.

"I've been reading a lot about this, but I'm waiting for my tax bill. . . . Most of the time (the assessments) come in under the salable price of a home," he added.

"No, I'm not pleased with taxes going up. I know of one woman whose place doubled in value — according to the assessor."

"I just look at it as another exemption on my income tax."

Kermit Petrock was philosophical about it, too.

"It's just what I expected," he said of the 8 per cent hike on his Division Street home in Pleasanton.

"The house is worth that, because the market is really inflated."

"The value's there, but you don't have it until you sell the house. It's really a tax on an inflated value."

One Pleasanton woman said she was "astounded" when she opened her mail yesterday. It was the second $10,000 jump in as many years.

Don't hike rates

Pleasanton city council should hold off on granting any garbage rate increase to Pleasanton Garbage Service and instead "renegotiate" with the firm and put the garbage contract out to competitive bidding, the CARD Committee decided Tuesday night.

Pleasanton Garbage Service has asked for a 36 per cent increase and the city staff has recommended a 31 per cent increase.

Downtown's new look

Pleasanton's downtown area will soon gain a major new business complex, including space for retail and office tenants.

Citizens Savings & Loan Association will anchor the block-long structure on property acquired by that firm several years ago. Citizens S&L has occupied the Abbie Street frontage with a temporary branch facility.

It is believed the property, with extensive frontage on Main Street, will be sold to a prime developer who will then lease back space to Citizens S&L and other tenants. Details on the development are expected in a few weeks when the program will be submitted to city planners prior to a request for building permits.

With the new Civic Center on Bernal Avenue and renovation of other office structures across from the former Post Office site, the Citizens Savings complex is seen as one more major boost for the South Main area.

Mall ready in 1980

Stoneridge Shopping Center could open in Pleasanton in 1980, according to project manager Robert Eynck.

Construction will commence, he said, when the developers receive necessary permits.

Sewage disposal problems with the city of Pleasanton and the Valley Community Services District are the keys to construction.

Fair should pay half-million to city

PLEASANTON — A citizens group is claiming that the city has lost a half million dollars in sewage treatment fees it should have collected from the last 19 years of Alameda County Fairgrounds operations.

The CARD citizens action group, representing about 20 active members, yesterday released a committee report charging that a 1958 contract to transport sewage from the fairgrounds "may be contrary to lawful conduct" and includes agreements allegedly made after possible "undue influence" was applied to a city administrator who signed the contract.

Oliver Anjo, chairman of the CARD committee that prepared the report, characterized the agreement as "unfair" and said the county or county fair board should repay $455,000 the city paid to treat sewage from the fairgrounds.

"We get nothing from the fairgrounds, even though we surround it. They use our roads and police, though," Anjo said yesterday.

The payment of $1000 to the city for an easement "may be contrary to lawful conduct and possibly without judicial precedence within the State of California in view of the intent and purpose of this transaction," the report states.

In addition, CARD says, "That there may have been undue influence placed on Mr. Donald Christin, the city administrator who signed the agreement, by unknown parties or agencies with the city or the county to enter into this manifestly and obviously one-sided arrangement." Nowhere in the 1958 contract does the city agree to treat the fairground's sewage without charge, Anjo said.

Lee Hall, secretary-treasurer of the county fair board, declined comment on the report, but stated CARD "must have read the report differently from our lawyers." He added, "I understand they (CARD) are basically a defunct group."

Anjo said he expected the matter to be brought up before city council prior to upcoming budget sessions, so a proposed sewer service charge increase could be averted by using back fees owed by the county.

Parking abuse

A blast at lazy motorists

LIVERMORE — Mayor Helen Tirsell this week took a blast at able bodied people who park in handicapped parking spots.

Prompted by a call from a handicapped man who complained he could never find a parking space at Granada Bowl or Safeway, Tirsell directed City Attorney Gary Reiners to prepare a resolution that would allow city police to cite violators of the special parking zones.

"Since then, I have had three or four other handicapped people call to tell of confrontations with people using their spaces and becoming insulting," Tirsell told The Times.

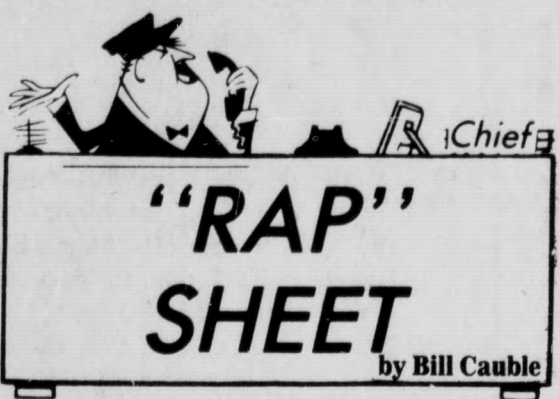

"They don't even feel ashamed that they have prevented someone from leading as normal a life as possible."

A Times reporter walked up to a van parked in the handicapped zone in front of Safeway yesterday and asked the driver if he was handicapped.

"I'm just dropping my wife off and leaving," said the young man, defensively. When the adjoining space was vacated, he moved his van to that space and waited for his wife.

Deputies arrest suspected flasher

DUBLIN — A 21-year-old Dublin man identified in a photo line-up as the suspect in an indecent exposure case was arrested by sheriff's deputies earlier this week.

Daniel Lee Burgard of 7571 Amador Valley Blvd., apt. 75, was booked on suspicion of committing indecent exposure.

According to reports, Burgard drove up near a woman watering her lawn on Evansburg Lane April 18 and allegedly exposed himself. The woman told the man to "get lost" and turned the hose on him.

Senior citizen injured by BB shot

PLEASANTON — One or more persons armed with pellet guns injured a 72-year-old woman walking on Rose Avenue Wednesday afternoon, police report.

Carmen Elizabeth Vernard of Augustine Street told officers she received a painful welt below her right collarbone about 3:30 p.m. while walking home.

Police said a Rose Avenue resident apparently fired a pellet gun from an open window, causing the injury. Two young boys playing near the scene were frightened away by the pellet blasts, and a car parked nearby was damaged. A suspect is being sought.

Irate customer accused of slugging clerk

PLEASANTON — A clerk refusing to sell liquor to a man who would not show his driver's license was allegedly slugged in the chest, police report.

Lorin Gregory Mediros, a clerk at Pleasanton Liquors, told officers two men came into his store Wednesday afternoon and asked to buy a quart of whiskey. When both men declined to show proof of their legal ages, Mediros put the bottle on the shelf and asked both customers to leave.

The men turned to leave, Mediros said, but one looked back and then allegedly hit the clerk in the chest with a closed fist.

Police arrested a suspect moments later a short distance from the store. Booked on suspicion of misdemeanor battery was Bruce Allen Lux, 20, of 418 Rose Ave.

Phony $10 bill passed at Aromatic

PLEASANTON — A counterfeit $10 bill was given to a clerk at Aromatic coffee house at 210 Rose Ave. sometime Tuesday, police report.

There were no reports of a suspect in the case. Investigation was turned over to the Secret Service.

Councilman Kamena pledges new favor in COVA's future

LIVERMORE — An about face by Councilman Marshall Kamena may give the Congress of Valley Agencies (COVA) a new lease on life.

Kamena, who joined a 3-1 majority of Livermore council members March 28 to withdraw from the COVA joint powers agreement, plans to ask a change in plans when council meets May 9.

"I originally voted to get out," Kamena told The Times, "because the direction it was taking didn't seem beneficial."

Kamena said when the original vote was taken he didn't know the county would be interested in membership, the transportation study had not yet started and he feared lackluster enthusiasm would not make continuing worthwhile.

"Reconsideration would be conditional on acceptance of the new structure," Kamena said, referring to a plan for COVA to meet less frequently and to commission several citizen groups to do studies.

"It would probably mean increased work for the COVA staff," said the Livermore councilman, "but it would allow COVA to be a forum for valleywide problems."

"This would allow the new transportation study to continue under the auspices of COVA rather than having to find another sponsor," he said.

If approved, Kamena wants COVA to extend a Formal invitation to County Supervisor Valerie Raymond who has expressed an interest in COVA that her predecessor John Murphy did not share.

Kamena said he was heavily influenced by discussions with a representative of the League of Women Voters and Lila Euler, a director of Valley Community Services District.

SRV teacher's book published

A California High School teacher's initial jaunt into the world of novel publishing may be about to pay handsome dividends.

Bob Hall, who is presently on leave from his faculty position at the San Ramon Valley Unified School District school, said his fictional work entitled "Exit Sherlock Holmes" is now at major book stores here and on the east coast.

In addition, the publishing firm, Scribner, plans an advertising campaign for the book in the New York Times.

Hall notes whimsically the official publication date was changed from April Fools Day, April 1, to Friday, May 13.

Apparently, in the realm of book publishing, the product is circulated for sale prior to the official publication date.

A teacher of English and art at Cal High, Hall has completed a second novel, titled "The Assassination Papers," which Scribner has expressed interest in publishing. The plot deals with an attempted assassination of King Edward of England in 1906.

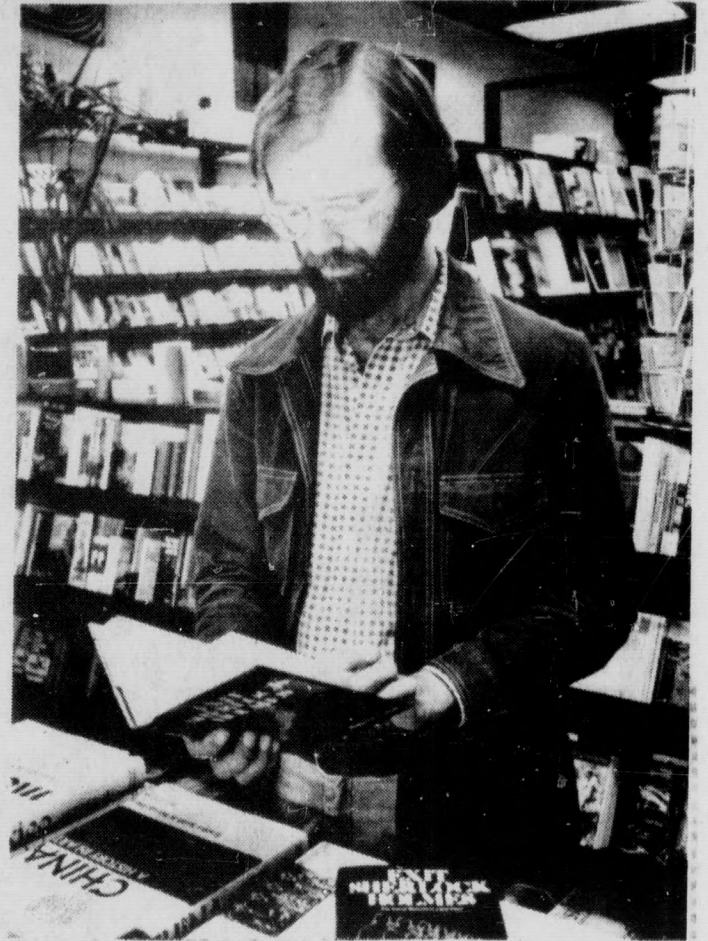

Like the work on Sherlock Holmes, the fiction novel on King Edward is a suspense adventure.

Hall's novel will be handled by John Murray, Ltd. in England.

For Valley Holmes - philes, the book is available at Rakestraw's Book Store on San Ramon Valley Boulevard in Danville, Books Unlimited and B. Dalton in Walnut Creek and Sun Valley - Concord.

While his current career emphasis is on writing, Hall said he will be returning to teaching duties next fall at California High School.

Trail joining local parks gets approval

A recommendation proposing a route for the hiking-riding trail connecting the Las Trampas and Mt. Diablo regional parks was approved last week by the East Bay Area Regional Trails Council.

The council unanimously approved the scenic route, minus staging areas, through Cook Canyon, with a spur off towards Humphrey's Arena, continuing along the Southern Pacific right of way and entering Las Trampas via Camille Avenue. The suggested route will be submitted to the East Bay Regional Park District board of directors for consideration.

The decision not to recommend any of the three proposed alternate staging areas the park district had earlier suggested be located along the route, was in response to a large turnout at a public hearing held several weeks ago.

Recommending that other staging areas be forgotten about until a later date, and pointing out that negative reaction to the trails is minimal, President Bruce Lee directed his remarks to park district staff representatives concerning the two recent controversial public hearings.

Urging the nearly 25 members of the advisory group present to attend the public hearings, Lee commented that "the park staff made recommendations which were not thoroughly researched, and the public was poorly informed," regarding the public hearings.

"I feel the park district came off with a tarnished image," said Lee, in response to articles appearing in the local press following the meeting.

Suggesting that the trail council get a sense of the political and local problems in the area prior to the public hearing, Norm Sims, advisor of the Danville Junior Horseman's Association, said the park district report outlined a staging area on Tao Meadow and possible on-trail on Kuss Road, both of which the council itself would not have recommended as viable alternatives.

Stating the park district made recommendations in direct opposition to what the council had recommended, Lee added that it was the feeling of those present that by the end of the meeting not even they could defend the park district's plan.

"You should get our feedback," said Lee. "We can be emissaries, but if you both hit us and the public cold at the public hearing, you don't have a chance."

One comment was raised about the park district trying to sabotage the trail plans by not having board members present at the meeting.

The park has been negligent on this trail, said Sims, bringing up the fact that several years ago the developers asked the park district to define the area, and that the staff really hadn't responded.

Brian Hodges suggested that notices be put in the paper, instead of receiving all the publicity after the fact, as was the case in the Las Trampas public hearing.

A brief argument arose between the choice of the Camille Avenue route and the already acquired access into the park through Del Amigo trail.

Pointing out that an alternate entrance into the park doesn't have to be part of the long distance trail, Jana Olson, EBRPD trails coordinator, said that putting the proposed trail through Camille instead of Del Amigo, would jeopardize the existing entrance.

"We won't endanger one by not designating the other," said Sims, adding that there is less opposition to the trail route running along Camille Avenue than along Hemme Avenue.

Other topics discussed at the meeting included security, fire hazards, hovering helicopters, motorcycles on trails, and loose dogs in the parks.

H. Wade Patterson (right) will edit Health Physics magazine with help from editorial assistant Judy Barnett, both Lawrence Livermore Laboratory employees.

Lab man to edit magazine

LIVERMORE — Health Physics magazine, official publication of the Health Physics Society, has selected H. Wade Patterson, head of the Hazards Control Department at Lawrence Livermore Laboratory, as its editor.

First published in 1958 and edited in Oak Ridge, Tenn., the magazine currently features such topics as minimizing radiation exposure to persons taking certain medical treatments, controlling radiation release to the environment, and improving radiation detection and monitoring devices.

Patterson has worked 30 years in the field of radiation protection at the Lawrence Laboratories in Livermore and Berkeley.

The July issue will be the first with Patterson as editor. The transfer of editorial activities from Oak Ridge to Livermore has begun under the direction of Judy Barnett, a technical editor at LLL who will serve as editorial assistant to Patterson.

The plan for transition was devised by Tom Brockett, head of the LLL technical information department, and Bob Spencer, special project division manager in the technical information department.

Barnett said about 200 potential articles are in various stages of editing, review and publication at any given time.

The goal of the Health Physics Society is to protect man and his environment from the harmful effects of radiation so atomic power and radiation may be used for man's benefit. The society has about 3500 members in 45 countries.

A signal decision on Main Street esthetics

PLEASANTON — Neal and Main Streets will have a traffic signal thanks to the hard-driving esthetic efforts of the city council Monday night.

It took a couple of reviews by the Chamber of Commerce (which were then rejected) and a few votes on the council, but the agreement finally will put a standard which has a slowly curved pole of conventional, but old-fashioned, design going out over Main Street to support the light.

The scene Monday night resembled Goldielocks and her encounter with the three bears' porridge.

First, the council took pains to find out what the Chamber of Commerce thinks by having City Attorney Ken Scheidig go to his offices in the City Council Chambers and calling Chamber vice-president Joyce Getty at about 10:15 p.m. The report back from Scheidig was "go with the original design." That meant an overhanging arm with "lazy Z's" on it resembling the overstructure of the traditional Pleasanton sign which is one block further down Main Street.

But the lazy Z's were offensive to Mayor Robert Philcox who suggested a plainer pole which comes out from the side of the sidewalk at a 90 degree angle. Vice-mayor Ken Mercer liked it, too, and they voted on it. It lost, two ayes, three no's.

Council Member Joyce LeClaire said the 90 degree pole was "too angular." She suggested a pole like it, but one that was bent in a "graceful curve," as she called it. That was fine with Council Member Frank Brandes, except that it had a "Neal Street" sign on it; in his opinion that disfigured it. But the sign is helpful to tourists, argued LeClaire.

Grudgingly Brandes went for the "graceful arch" version, but noted he was voting under protest because of the "Neal Street" sign tacked on it. Other council members fell into line and it passed unanimously.

All chip in for elderly transit study

Alameda County Bureau OAKLAND — If the cities of Pleasanton, Livermore and Union City will each put up $500, the county will contribute $2,000 to an AC Transit study of transportation for the elderly and handicapped.

The decision came yesterday after Valley Community Services District Director Lila Euler, representing the Valley Transportation Committee of COVA, made her plea before county supervisors.

COVA, the Congress of Valley Agencies, wanted the Metropolitan Transportation Commission to fund the Valley's share of the study.

But county supervisor and MTC member Joseph Bort said "MTC has a pretty consistent policy that local agencies must kick in or else MTC will be doing studies for everybody."

Supervisor Valerie Raymond of Livermore said she talked to the mayors of Livermore and Pleasanton over the weekend and asked them to take the matter to their city councils.

The only objection came from north county supervisor John George.

While George abstained in the 4-0 vote, he questioned the county subsidizing an AC Transit study.

If the bus district wants eventually to get into the Valley's marketing area, he said, then the district ought to absorb the costs of the study.

"It's not clear at this point," retorted Raymond, that AC Transit actually wants to run regular bus service into the Valley.

The district currently operates feeder buses to BART stations under a contract with the Bay Area Rapid Transit District.

The study, conducted by Progressive Grocer, an industry trade publication, based its rankings on 30,000 interviews with adults, covering 900 product categories. Statistics show that 96.7 per cent of the respondents use bread. Other items in high demand include table salt, flour, mayonnaise and mayonnaise-type dressing, catsup, margarine and granulated sugar.

Target date 1980 for Stoneridge

Robert Eynck, project manager for the Stoneridge Regional Shopping Center long planned for an area in the Highway 580-Foothill Road triangle, says current thinking is that the center could open by the fall of 1980.

At a press conference earlier this week held in conjunction with announcement of $750 contributions to the Foothill High School bleachers fund, Eynck said construction would commence when Stoneridge gets the necessary permits from the City of Pleasanton and Valley Community Services District — "and before initiation of the pipeline project."

Construction timing is unalterably keyed to the sewage problem and construction of the pipeline. While saying that the enthusiasm of the three "anchor" stores planned for the center is as great as ever, Eynck admitted that Stoneridge and Taubman Company "would have liked the population projections (for the Livermore-Amador Valley) to be as they were in the early 1970s. But we and the major department stores (Capwells, Penneys, and Macys) have adjusted our thinking and scaled down to the needs of the area."

Eynck said when the pipeline project is approved, VCSD will then be allowed to dump more effluent into Alameda Creek, subject to effluent quality, on a temporary basis and with permission of the Alameda Water Control District.

The regional center will be 850,000 square feet initially. Yvan Albert, president of the Foothill High Boosters Club, was present to formally accept donations of $750 each from Eynck, representing Taubman Company, and Stoneridge Development Co.

Eynck said his company as well as Stoneridge want to continue to be identified with the community. He is a Pleasanton resident as well and has children in local schools.

Albert, in expressing sadness that the field could not be ready until next fall, said the club is short $2,000 of its July commitment to the Amador school board. He said the goal is to turn over a total of $10,000 by July 1.

Albert said the club plans another mailing to solicit funds for the bleachers.

Also needed is volunteer labor to prepare the field and install the bleachers when that time comes.

The total project cost is $135,000.

The boosters have had numerous fund-raisers and contributed hundreds of hours of labor to the project thus far. The Amador district is aiding the project financially with allocations of $50,000 from the community services tax each of the last two years.

In June, the Amador district board is slated to approve contracts for planking. Boosters, any others volunteering their services, will put in the 2,000 permanent seats.

Portables will be brought in at a later date to be placed on the visiting team side of the field.

Raised here, priest stays here

Tears of joyful emotion spring into the eyes of Nettie Riccio when she remembers the moment when her son was called forth from his parents' side to join four other aspiring priests during the ordination ceremony.

"I couldn't begin to describe my feelings," says Frank Riccio of the ceremony. "It was a once-in-a-lifetime experience. I have never experienced such a moving event in my life." The church of St. Lawrence O'Toole in Oakland was packed with 1,300 worshippers and 100 priests at the ordination. The most awe-inspiring moment came when the bishop laid his hands on the heads of the candidates and called upon the Holy Spirit to consecrate them. All priests present, in turn, did the same to confirm their brotherhood as successors to the Apostles of Christ.

For Fred, the ordination was the culmination of 12 years of preparation. His progress toward priesthood was "natural and gradual growth" since he entered the seminary after elementary school. But his decision to finally dedicate himself to his vocation, or "calling," crystallized during his college years.

His parents believe that his vocation was God-given from the start. Both vividly recall the "vocation notebook" Fred made as a third-grader in which he declared he would become a priest.

"We saw the way he was with other people, with children," says Mrs. Riccio. "He was always setting a good example, taking leadership, playing the teacher. As a student in the seminary, he was always so dedicated. We never doubted he would become a priest."

Fred responds to that comment by saying that his parents' love for each other, and extended love for many others, was a very influential and supporting factor in his decision. The support from the elder Riccios was constant, undemanding and strong.

The family had always prayed regularly together, so when Fred began his training as a priest it was natural that he bring home the experiences and lessons of the seminary. Mr. and Mrs. Riccio claim they learned more about their faith from their son than ever before in their lives.

"We learned so much from Fred, that when the new changes came in the Church we were prepared and could understand them clearly," says Mrs. Riccio. "When we participated in the new services at the seminary where everyone was so dedicated, we found it very impressive and convincing," declares Mr. Riccio.

The Riccios had come to know other parents of seminarians during those 12 years of training, and shared in a celebration with those couples the evening before the ordination. That evening, too, Fred remembered his parents in his own way. He gave them his blessing in thanksgiving for all they had given him.

Vanished doctor under investigation

PLEASANTON — The Bureau of Medical Quality Assurance in San Mateo is investigating allegations against general practitioner Dr. Gerald Price.

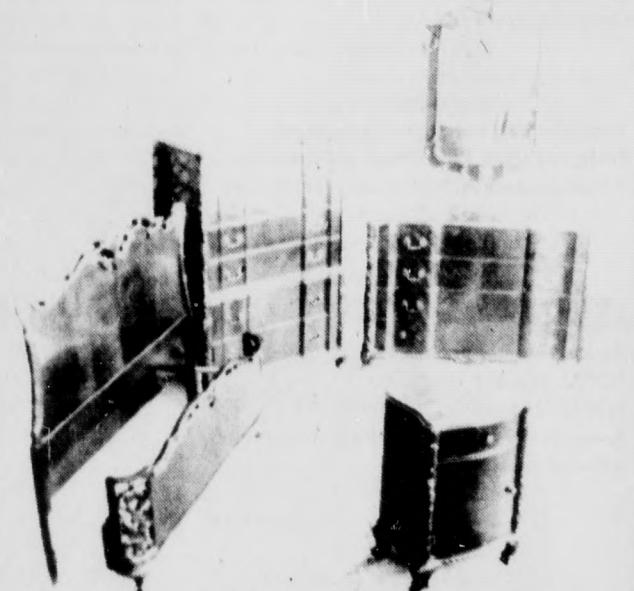

A bureau official yesterday confirmed the investigation but said no action has been filed against the physician at this time by the bureau. Meanwhile, many local ex-patients of Dr. Price are trying to retrieve their medical records, in at least one case because the papers are needed for a court case. Other patients have inoculation records and allergy histories needed by their new physicians.

The physician, well liked by many, moved his office equipment three weeks ago to Raleigh, N.C. without making any announcement to his patients. His new address is listed by the post office as 3037 Timberlake Drive, Apt. A, Raleigh, N.C., 27604.

According to the Bureau of Medical Quality Assurance, patients are legally entitled to copies of their records although the originals are the property of the physician.

A look at refurbished public housing

A plain functional kitchen, below, is part of the refurbishing done at a low - moderate income condominium project in Vallejo which was inspected by Pleasanton Housing Authority officials yesterday. At right is an exterior view of a sample sixplex among the 106 units which are in the process of being refurbished. Another 210 units will follow in the next two years. PHA officials thought that the project appears to satisfy the requirements of the private builder and the condominium buyers, but is so different in origin, orientation, and some aspects of its execution, that it really can't provide a guideline for what to do about Komandorski Village. They still are set to tear down Komandorski Village and build new housing on the site.

Fine in Vallejo, but not here

Spurred by critics' suggestions that Komandorski Village can be refurbished as cheaply as the Hillcrest Park project in Vallejo, Pleasanton Housing Authority officials visited Vallejo yesterday to see for themselves.

They concluded that a private developer has brought forth a dandy little project to meet current needs there, but it is like comparing apples and ocean liners.

Developer Hal Boex is converting 316 private rental units, which used to be public housing from the 1942 era, to private condominiums in the $18,000 to $22,000 range. What they saw was a project which started out better in 1942 than Komandorski Village did in 1943 — and for that reason and a few others, there is no ray of hope that commissioners will decide to refurbish the housing instead of building new stuff.

The Vallejo housing started life as townhouses; that makes it a lot easier to meet modern codes about soundproofing. At Komandorski Village, the soundproofing requirements would mean new ceilings and floors for all of the units.

The Vallejo units all face a modern street; the Komandorski units are bunched in long lines like a movie set in some World War II barracks.

The Vallejo housing is not as cheap as it sounds. For one thing, the next 50 units to be converted will cost another $4,000 more. Costs are going up. For another thing, the builder was permitted to make many compromises structurally and that will cost the buyers a lot in future years. If the housing authority did that, it would cost either the housing authority or the federal government the maintenance, for example, for old plumbing in the walls which will need replacement within 10 years.

The rooms in the Vallejo units are larger. Typically they are 13 feet by 9 feet; at Komandorski they run about 10 feet by 10 feet.

Secretary Michael Parsons, Koma Vallejo was built in 1942 while good materials still were available; in 1943 the stepped up war effort weakened the quality of materials which wound up in the Komandorski project.

In all, feels PHA Executive Secretary Michael Parsons, Komandorski Village doesn't come close to being rehabilitatable. Joining him on the trip to Vallejo yesterday were Commission Chairperson Penny Deleray and consultant Daniel Vandaver, who reported last week to the housing authority board that it would cost $8.2 million to refurbish Komandorski Village and more than $7 million to build a new one.

Alameda-Contra Costa honors

Students keep blood flowing to bank vault

Valley high-school students have been out for blood this year.

And they've gotten it — so successfully that the Alameda-Contra Costa County Blood Bank is considering Granada High School in Livermore for one of the four awards to be given to schools with the best participation in this year's blood drives.

Livermore and Dublin High School students also held successful blood drives this year to aid the always-needy Blood Bank.

In all, some 40 high schools collected 7,000 pints of blood to help supply the two-county area. That made up about 12 per cent of the total 60,000 pints collected in the past year.

Two blood drives were held at Granada in the past eight months. Students who were unable to donate during the last collection because of a track meet and a band trip on the same date are planning to go to Pleasanton on Tuesday to donate during that city's bimonthly collection.

288 pints will have been collected at Granada, according to the Blood Bank. The senior class, headed by president Carl Duncan, signed up donors and organized the collection for the second year in a row.

At Livermore High, it was California Scholarship Federation students who sponsored the drive, assisted by advisor Joanne Cox and nurse Connie Bentley.

Neither of the Pleasanton high schools, Amador and Foothill, has participated in blood drives. Principals Ralph Laird and Richard Carroll said they had never heard of the school-sponsored collections.

Explaining Granada High's outstanding success, nurse Geraldine Deck said, "They really care. It's amazing I didn't realize they'd take it so much."

"The kids in the senior class really get out and recruit. And the social science teachers and paraprofessionals help a lot. It would be easy for them to say, 'Don't bother me with that. But they really get behind it.'"

Mrs. Deck also praised the Blood Bank personnel for giving the students control over the blood drive. "They allow friends to go through together. If a girl wants to have her boyfriend there to hold her hand, that's OK. They don't keep the kids at arm's length."

Members of the blood drive committee, including Rene Contratto, Mary Jamison and Renee Coronato, promoted it by wearing T-shirts supplied by the Blood Bank. Everyone who donated was rewarded with a frisbee from Fidelity Bank, coupons from McDonald's and decorated "memory trays" from the Coca-Cola Co.

But they hadn't known they would be getting goodies when they signed up, says Mrs. Deck. "It's a badge of honor to go around with that band-aid on their arm."

Three years ago, blood banks agreed to stop buying blood from donors because they found too often it was low-quality blood coming from diseased donors. In the scramble to encourage volunteers to give more, the law was changed to allow 17-year-olds to donate, with parental permission. Minimum weight for a blood donor is 110 lbs.

Last year the local Blood Bank offered $3,000 worth of band instruments to the high school with best participation. Granada placed second in a contest with no second prize.

This year, there will be four $750 scholarships available for the schools with best participation. Winners will not be announced until the May 10 Blood Bank luncheon to be held in Oakland and attended by local student organizers and school staff. However, a Blood Bank official told The Times Granada could be in line for one of the awards.

Blood collected through the high schools goes into local "blood clubs" to credit students, staff and community members in need. At the end of the year, leftover blood credits go to "Operation Relay," a plan which provides free blood for children who have leukemia, sickle cell anemia, hemophilia or who have had surgery at Children's Hospital and are in need of massive transfusions.

Amador, Pleasanton schools

Complaints over administration pay

Representatives of Amador and Pleasanton district teachers and classified employees are considering further public objections to what they believe are inequitable pay increases given administration, specialist and management personnel by district boards earlier this week.

The apparent source of irritation are 5.25 per cent pay increases granted classified confidential, management and supervisory personnel and 5 per cent hikes to Superintendent Bruce Newlin and three assistant superintendents of the Amador and Pleasanton districts.

Wanda Robison, food services technician and negotiating team leader for district classified employees, asked trustees Tuesday night what their rationale was for granting the increases when classified employees were accorded just 4 per cent hikes.

She also contends that the salary classification ranges of some central district office personnel were raised.

The elementary board voted 4-0, with Ronald Ott abstaining, to approve the salary hikes for administrative and specialist positions, and 5-0 on classified confidential, management, and supervisory pay recommendations.

The high school district board put all classes into one motion and approved the salary hikes 5-0.

The administration salary schedule includes Newlin, who was increased from $35,000 to $37,000 and given a three-year contract through June of 1979; and assistant superintendents Doug Rose, granted an increase from $29,539 to $31,100, Carl Krause, from $29,169 to $30,900, and Neil Sweeney, from $29,169 to $30,700 per year. Their contracts were extended through June of 1978.

Newlin said yesterday the top four administrators have discussed going on a merit pay raise procedure.

The classified confidential group includes Bev Lester, Althea Hanscom, Janet Welch, Lillian Moore, Bev Haight, Rosemary Mecozzi, and Edna

Green. Management personnel are those such as food services director Robert Renard. Supervisory are those such as Mike Anos, director of transportation and buildings and grounds.

The specialist salary schedule covers Dr. David Carlisle, director of research and development, school principals, Regional Occupational Program director Roy Isler, Amador Adult Education director Mike Connolly, Director of Pupil Personnel Services Gloria Jones, and vocational education director Sandy Sandoval.

In other business, Pleasanton trustees received a contract proposal for 1977-78 from Andy Jorgensen, head of the Amador Valley Teachers Association negotiating team, approved a contract for data processing services with Alameda County and beginning July 1, approved the contract with classified employees and okayed an application for categorical aid.

Tax assessments are out

If the owner feels there has been an error, or that the property cannot be sold on the open market at the assessor's price, he or she should march to Zaidel's office, wait in line, and talk to an appraiser.

Zaidel cites one gentleman whose property shot up an alarming $40,000 in market value this year.

He protested and was right. The computer had stuck in an extra zero.

"We want people to come in and talk to us informally," Zaidel said. "And they shouldn't consider it a threat."

The main counter at his office already is jammed with taxpayers in protest.

Telephones — banks of them — are ringing off the hook.

"But what can we do?" Zaidel asks. "We have to follow the state law."

The State Board of Equalization audits each county every year to make sure assessments are 25 per cent of the fair market value.

If not, the board can order an across the board change.

Last year the county was found to be a bit high at 25.8 per cent. This year Zaidel thinks it will be at about 24.5 per cent.

"But, actually, we know assessments are 22 to 23.5 per cent of the true market value," he adds.

"We're in the terrible position of responding to a market that's terribly out of control."

Inflation in housing is so rampant that he fears petitions to the Assessment Appeals Board will result in even higher assessments once an appraiser checks that individual piece of property.

Most of the assessment roll is increased through a computer programed with neighborhood housing sales and construction costs.

"We just hope people won't get emotional, but will challenge our value with hard facts," he said.

"This is a really disconcerting business to be in this time of year. But in another way, we're comfortable. The state checks everything we do. We have to conform to that law."

—by Ron Rodriguez

Property tax game might save money but watch rules

Like any game, there are definite rules governing play.

You, too, may win at "Property Tax Roulette," but you have to understand — and abide by — those rules before you place your first bet.

DO NOT plead with the assessor that you simply can't afford the tax. That consideration is not mentioned in the state code.

DO NOT decry "wasteful government spending" that's pushing up your tax bill. The assessor sets only the value, not the tax rate.

DO NOT tell the assessor you don't want to sell your home, even if you could get $65,000 for it. State law says the market value is what a "willing buyer and a willing seller" would agree to should you decide to sell your home.

DO NOT protest a $65,000 assessment when your next door neighbor just sold an identical home for $75,000. If that's your value as of March 1, your assessment could go up again.

DO point out that the expensive neighboring house has another 700-square-foot distributed to a third bathroom and fourth bedroom.

DO point out your neighbor's half-acre and your fifth-acre parcel.

DO note your single garage and their double garage. Ditto expensive landscaping, pool, built-in bar-b-cue, etc.

DO NOT beg, cry or threaten. The assessor is bound by state law. There are half-a-dozen bills in the legislative hopper promising property tax reform.

Keep him after June?

All year school

At two board meetings and a bond election in the month of May, the question of "year around school" will be very much on the minds of San Ramon's parents. Their reaction will be of keen interest to every other family in this suburban basin.

There was a time when year around use of classroom space was being promoted as "the logical answer to a shortage of schools." An economy of building, land and even teaching talent was seen as the likely result. But it never won much favor among Americans who have grown accustomed to that long summer break for students.

Once again, it is economy that motivates the San Ramon Unified School District board of trustees to launch a "pilot program" offering 12 months of schooling, most likely in classrooms in the fast-growing south end of that district. And, if a May 31 bond issue for new school construction fails to win voter support, the district suggests year around use of all schools in the SRVUSD might be the only answer.

There is a lot of argument, pro and con, on the subject of schools that would operate for 12 months — even though most programs would still limit the student to the present 9-month classroom schedule. Perhaps San Ramon Valley can give us all an indication of how such a program might fare, in a modern, suburban climate.

Deadly game

Hardly a week goes by that does not bring us a report of some new tragedy on our streets ... an auto accident resulting in one or more fatalities. The real tragedy is that these deaths often involve the very young, and far too often with youngsters at the wheel.

It is a difficult subject, and one that few of us dare discuss during the passion of the moment, the loss incurred by one family. But it is time responsible members of our society took stock of the terrible mayhem that results when teenagers and cars and — let's face it — liquor or drugs of some kind, are mixed.

"Lower the speed limit!" is one response we can always count on following yet another auto fatality. But that is rarely the answer. Nor is another stop sign, or a reduced curve.

A young driver (or an adult one, for that matter) who is determined to drive at high speed along a local road of known hazards is not going to be curbed by signs or posted limits. It is far too late for that.

The answer must come sooner. The real parental concern must begin with sound driver education, firm rules, and an example which our children might emulate.

The loss of any life because of a meaningless auto incident is always traumatic; when that life is one which had just begun to bloom, the tragedy is that much greater.

And that much more avoidable. We can begin by looking at the real source of nearly all auto accidents ... the person behind the wheel, the attitude of those sharing that vehicle.

Those are our children. They need something more from us than another tiresome campaign to lower the speed limit.

City hall space

When City Manager Wm. Parness proposed that needed office space be funded through Livermore's allotted "federal revenue sharing" there were those to say — "It's a good idea; what else can we do?"

What else indeed? The history of providing municipal office space, even in such rapid-growth areas as ours, is a strange one. Tracy tried for years to convince its taxpayers that the city crew should be moved out of rundown structures that had been abandoned by the federal government; but Tracy's taxpayers would not support funding for a permanent city hall.

Concord was getting desperate about its inadequate city offices when the miracle of Sun Valley Shopping Center occurred within those municipal limits. The million dollars — plus that Concord gets each year from that one retail hub more than pays off the bonds for its handsome city office complex.

When San Rafael had to have a new city hall those city council members voted to "pay cash" for the modest structure built downtown ... but the cash was only available because San Rafael enjoyed a healthy business climate, with resulting city tax revenues.

More recently, Pleasanton got around public indifference to crowded city offices by forming a non-profit corporation, borrowing the money and building a modest "civic center" that will probably pay for itself in ten years of use compared to the hodge-podge of trailers and rentals where once the city staff was housed.

Now Livermore faces the muni office crunch. A scattering of leased-space around town is inadequate, and costly. The city manager says "let's use $1 million in federal revenue" that is due the community, and that could be diverted to city office construction — provided the public agrees. Good luck.

Open commissions

Once again it's the press and presumably the public against the politicians.

AB 1265 in the Legislature would drop the curtain of secrecy back down on interviews for all of the commissioners who are appointed by the local city councils and by county boards of supervisors.

The Pleasanton City Council likes that idea and they are joining the California League of Cities in supporting the bill.

They didn't give any specific reasons Monday night for supporting the bill, but in general feeling on the Pleasanton council has been that "more can be said" in executive session. That may be, but those commissioners are serving the public, not the council members, and the public has a right to know what the applicants think on the issues that come before various commissions. We were happy to see the Brown Act liberalized to the point of public interviews of commission candidates and are sad to see that politicians don't believe in real public access to the people who decide policies for the people.

EARL WATERS

Bad insurance

Are Californians who invest in insurance to protect themselves from losses being adequately protected from overcharges and underpayments by the companies? Although such is supposed in the fact that state has provided a Department of Insurance to regulate companies and their agents, serious question as to how well that agency is performing its guardianship has been raised by the Auditor General.

In a 40 page report, which details specifics, the department is charged with favoritism, inadequate investigations of complaints as well as inadequate management and ineffective organization.

Although many of the criticisms have been vigorously denied by Insurance Commissioner Wesley J. Kinder, the stinging rebukes contained in the report suggest the department inclines to a laissez faire policy in its regulation of insurers.

At least assemblyman Mike Cullen, Chairman of the Joint Legislative Audit Committee which ordered the examination of the disciplinary functions of the department, seems to have come to that conclusion. "After reading the report," Cullen commented, "one must wonder who is watching the store?"

Cullen, an attorney, was obviously influenced in his judgement by findings which showed that instead of bringing actions against insurers for misconduct, the routine for handling policy holder complaints is that of mediation. This despite the fact the department is not authorized to arbitrate disputes. As the report stated, "management sees its function to use 'jawboning' and 'friendly persuasion' to mediate fair settlements'."

Such a procedure opens the door wide to "deals" which may mollify the complainant but does little or nothing to stop or correct an insurer's overall operation. The insurance industry, which for years has enjoyed a "sacred cow" image, has been coming under attack in recent years due to gigantic swindles, excessive lobbying activities in behalf of no-fault auto insurance, and heavy handed rate raising in connection with medical malpractice insurance. Author Richard Shulman recently described the insurance companies as "essentially a bookmaking operation."

Although insurance companies are regulated by the states, the question is "how well are they regulated?" Actually there hasn't been a serious legislative investigation of the insurance companies since the 1905 New York State inquiry which ultimately catapulted Charles Evans Hughes into the position of Chief Justice of the United States.

The general opinion is that most of the state regulations have been drafted by the insurance companies themselves. Certainly they have had great influence in the writing, and also seem to have considerable in the administration of the laws as the report indicates.

The Cullen committee need not pause in its inquiries into the insurance commissioner's performance to debate the findings of its present report. The fact that almost every commissioner since 1941 has not only come from the insurance companies but inevitably returns to them should answer Cullen's question as to who is minding the store and signal to him that the department is not constituted to protect the public but rather the insurance companies.

Prior to 1941 the law specifically barred any officer or employee or agent of an insurance company from appointment as commissioner. Until that law is restored the chances for shifting to a firm enforcement attitude towards insurers seem remote.

Heaven exclusive?

Editor, The Times:

Bob Leone may be right on Marjoe, but wrong on Heaven as an Exclusive Club. His hard and fast rule for Salvation is typical of the born-again Zealot's lack of sensitivity toward non Christians. For example, only if the Jews abandon on their long cherished faith will they be allowed to sip Heavens Eternal Nectar. I'm sure the God of Abraham thinks otherwise! Joe Muecke

Editor, The Times:

The delegation of town officials and judo instructors from our new sister city of Yotsukaido, Japan was most grateful for the hospitality shown them by the citizens of Livermore and the fine press coverage received on their visit to Livermore recently. When I saw them off at the airport, they asked me to relay to the community and the newspapers their tremendous appreciation for all the effort that was put forth to make them feel welcome and to make their visit a happy and worthwhile experience.

Our goal in the development of the Sister City Program is to bring about improved understanding between the citizens of our two nations and eventual world peace and your staff should be proud indeed that it has made a significant contribution to this goal through its generous coverage of our recent events. We trust you will publicize our future cultural interchanges with Yotsukaido, as well.

We would like to publicly recognize individuals and groups in addition to the very dedicated hard-working members of our own organization who did so much to assist us: Chabot College, Valley Campus; Concanon Vineyards; Claire Haratani; Chris Ising; City of Livermore; Mr. p Mrs. Earl Ising; Japanese-American Cultural Exchange Program; Dr. & Mrs. Marshall Kamena; Lawrence Livermore Laboratory; Livermore Chamber of Commerce; Livermore Heritage Guild; Liver-

Poor education

Editor, The Times:

I would like to say something about the letter written by Neal Cavanaugh, April 22, 1977, in regard to the amount of high-achievers in the AVHS district.

I am just a student, one who is always been considered a high-achiever. I was placed in an advanced Composition class as a sophomore, which was considered "a privilege." Now, as a junior, I have found by taking the P.S.A.T. that I am low in grammar skills.

If I had not paid the $4.00 to take that test, I may never have found this out! The $4.00 was a minor fee, but the time lost is invaluable! Why was it necessary for me to have waited this long? Shouldn't a teacher between 3rd and 10th grade have pointed this out to me? I feel that I am not getting the proper education that my parents are paying for.

Think of the students who believe the teachers and their test results! They think they are doing well. They go to college, and they have to be put in "Bonehead English" at possible extra cost, not to mention the added time wasted! It makes you wonder, don't it!

FOCUS/Taxes & crime

The lesser evil

The governor had departed the Convention Center's Sacramento Room trailed by a phalanx of media types, leaving panel discussion moderator John Van de Kamp (district attorney for Los Angeles County) with the alternative of trying to re-gather the audience or call a break for lunch.

He opted for the latter and the 150 or so members of the media and law professions, not concerned with deadlines or getting something quotable from the governor, departed the premises.

Earlier in the day, Wednesday, we had noted chairs being set up on the east lawn of the capital and buses disgorging hundreds of persons holding yellow flyers bearing the words "Citizens Action League."

So we took part of the noon hour and walked over to the Convention Center auditorium — to find more than 1,000 persons, a majority "over 40" and/or minority members, cheering on speakers who were pledging their support to programs that would take the tax burden off of the low income and middle classes.

A rallying point for the lobbying was Sen. Nick Petris' legislation.

Petris is a veteran Alameda County legislator whose party affiliation and frequent forays on behalf of the "little guy" have earned him a staunch following.

The size of the respective audiences left little doubt where the concerns of many citizens are today — staunchly in opposition to rising taxes that seemingly sock the middle income brackets while permitting loopholes for the rich.

The mood of both the morning and afternoon sessions of the California's Forgotten Victims Week discussions was one of frustration.

After four hours of discussion and questions, anchored by a distinguished panel of law enforcement personnel, judges and citizen advocates, it became apparent that this state is being victimized and brutalized, from the white collar criminal to the considerably less subtle street gangs of metropolitan areas, drug manufacturers and pushers, parolees and mentally disordered.

It proved an informative and eye-opening day in Sacramento — and one that will leave some disturbing thoughts to ponder.

Round the town

There are points along the South Rim of the Grand Canyon where you get the feeling you could spit across to the other side ... provided your spitter has a range of three miles.

Comes time to drive to the North Rim and you are informed it is a trek no less challenging than the attempt by Messrs Lewis and Clark to reach Oregon territory.

"There isn't exactly a direct route from the South Rim to the North Rim," the happy little female guide explains, happily. "About 216 miles in fact, if you want to drive clear round. But," she adds, fortunately, "I wouldn't make the trip if I were you, cause the North Rim isn't open yet anyway."

More primitive on that north side, we are informed. Snow lays around a lot longer. Limited facilities, short season. Trans World Airlines owns and operates the North Rim lodge. Santa Fe Railroad has been major domo of the South Rim's spacious offerings since 1905. But the rail link which gathered visitors from around the nation into Flagstaff, and thence on to Grand Canyon, is no more.

Santa Fe and American Airlines have both learned that Grand Canyon is not the easiest place in the world to get into. They should try getting out sometime.

"I thought we were just going to drive over to Las Vegas and then north to Reno along that line right there," she says, running her finger along our California - Nevada road map. The map is loaded with red and black lines; none of them lead from Grand Canyon to Reno.

We finally determine to journey south to Williams (there isn't any other choice) thence west to Kingman, a sneaky end - around to skirt the south end of Lake Mead, thereby avoiding Las Vegas (saved a bundle right there, I'll betcha);

Picked up Route 15 (and another tank of premium) and were in Barstow before you could say "What's that funny noise the car is making?"

Ignored funny noise, ignored female counseling, and pretty soon we're there! — On State Route 395, headed due north. Well, almost due north.

We had never before travelled the southern reaches of Route 395. After one hour of near - nothing, I was wondering what'n'hell we were doing on the thing.

"Don't be discouraged," she said, encouragingly, "we're bound to come to a gas station or a coffee shop or something, eventually." She kept saying that, late into the day, when finally we came to Ridgeland, California.

The Miracle City Motel, to be specific. The miracle is that we found it, or why.

"Our town is growing like crazy," Miss Miracle City Motel informed me. Something to do with the nearby China Lake Naval installation. (The lake is dry. The Navy is not. Spending our money like mad.)

It was also in Ridgeland that I discovered my favorite safety razor was missing. Nowhere in sight.

"We must have forgotten to pack it, when we left Grand Canyon," she suggested.

Truth is, it was SHE who forgot to pack it. I was busy checking out. Packing is her duty. Once she forgot my pajamas. Now it's the razor. Costing me a king's ransom. The journey from Ridgeland back onto Route 395 was particularly long, and silent, and scratchy. Good thing the scenery picked up the pace.

And what scenery! To the left, Sequoia National Park threw up a formidable wall of trees, hills and snow - capped mountains; to the right, alkaline lakes and desert wastes spread eastward in stark contrast to the lush pastures of Sequoia.

Here, for the first time, a Californian might behold the majesty of our Sierras in their full glory ... Crag Peak and Sirretta Peak and Kern Peak rising up off that desert floor in a picture that is never possible from our view of the Yosemite or Eldorado mountain country.

And above them all, Mount Whitney stands in late-winter defiance of the dry summer that has already taken hold of the valley floor. It is some sight.

It was there, at the base of Mt. Whitney, on Route 395, that we came upon Lone Pine. A delightful little place ... prosperous and inviting ... surrounded by lovely camping grounds and loaded with good motels.

"If we had known about this we could have passed up Ridgeland and come this much farther for a really nice stopover," she said. Yes, and if I had known she had planned to leave my favorite safety razor in Grand Canyon I would have had that cute little cocktail waitress do the packing!

But the beauty of 395, of Lone Pine and Bishop — somewhat bigger, but equally attractive — made us forget her shortcomings. There is more to life than a close shave, I decided.

And there is more beauty along 395 than we had seen in all 2000 miles of our great Grand Canyon circular route. A trip worth the effort, we finally agreed. But take along an extra razor.

Berry's World

"Look, Mac, if you don't stop blubbering about your emotional ties to your big gas-guzzling car, I'll have to ask you to leave!"

Dr. Joyce Brothers

DEAR DR. BROTHERS: My husband and I have been married for 15 years and I'm still in love. I'm frustrated, though, because my husband has trouble making love to me. He's quite healthy and has never been sick a day in his life. I worry and wonder if his impotence is my fault or if he's seeing another woman. He thinks I ask a lot but to me, sex once a week is not a lot. I can't talk with him about it because I'm afraid I'll hurt his feelings or give him a complex. Because I don't discuss it, I find I'm nagging him about other things. — P.N.

DEAR P.N.: There are ways to express your feelings without making your husband feel anxious. Almost all men are impotent at some period in their lives. Among the psychological causes are fear, depression, sexual misinformation, guilt, anger, an unresponsive or disinterested partner, or a general breakdown in the relationship. Nagging can easily cause such a breakdown.

Ask your husband how he feels about your relationship, not necessarily the sexual, but the emotional part. In order to be gratifying, sex doesn't always have to end in intercourse and orgasm. For instance, many sex therapists suggest that couples learn to relax, to enjoy each other, to caress and love without always feeling they must strive for orgasm. If you can avoid putting pressure on your husband to perform, you are much more likely to reduce his anxieties so that he can perform.

Impotence is often an emotionally devastating problem for a man. If this continues, I suggest he get professional counseling.

DEAR DR. BROTHERS: I am not a shoplifter, but it's only the fear of getting caught that prevents me from stealing. I've never been able to tell this to anyone and the fact that, in my mind, I'm a thief disturbs me. I have problems about money and this has wrecked two marriages. I'm determined with this husband to limit my arguments about money. I simply swallow my feelings, my bitterness, and my envy at his ability to earn. I feel about stealing the way Alcoholics Anonymous feels about liquor. I know it's there always tempting me and I'm afraid I may slip and actually take something from a store. — K.C.

DEAR K.C.: Almost everyone has some problems about money. It's all a matter of degree. It sounds to me, from your letter, that you would profit from professional help. Otherwise, the tension and hostility you're carrying may destroy your marriage.

The energy you're using in trying not to steal could be applied positively in an effort to get at the real source of your anxiety. Your energy is also being wasted in anger and hatred. You must action your envy at your husband's ability to earn. I suspect that you may be unconsciously angry with him because he's male and you're not.

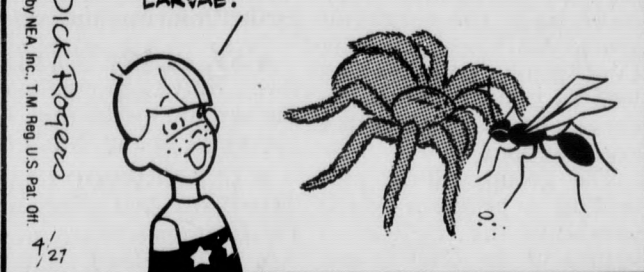

Shoplifting is known as a crime of women. Women who steal compulsively often have sexual problems. Unconsciously, they feel they've been robbed by being a female and they steal to compensate for what they perceive to be their loss. Get help now. It will change your life and once you uncover the source of your conflicts, you'll be relieved of a great burden.

Johnny Wonder's QUESTION CORNER

Q. "WHAT IS A TARANTULA HAWK?"

ANDY PEARCE
TUCSON, AZ

A. A TARANTULA HAWK IS A LARGE WASP THAT CAPTURES TARANTULAS BY STINGING THEM AND USING THEM AS FOOD FOR THE WASP LARVAE.

Many wasps attack enemies with their stings. But one kind of wasp, the tarantula hawk, uses its stinger to provide food for its young.

This big, blue-black wasp lives in the southwestern United States, where it burrows into the ground to make a nest.

It knows that its young are very particular about their diet. They will eat only tarantula spiders, and they like their food alive.

When the nest is finished, the wasp flies off to hunt for a tarantula to stock the nest. When it finds one, the wasp provokes the dangerous spider into rising in defense on its hind legs.

As it does so, the tarantula exposes the vulnerable spot on its breast. Then with a quick thrust of its stinger the wasp paralyzes the big spider.

Now the wasp drags the helpless victim into the nest and lays an egg on its body. The baby wasp hatches in a few days and finds an ample supply of fresh food.

The unlucky expert had a new hand for us. He showed us the West cards, gave us the bidding and asked: "What would you lead?"

We studied the hand and replied, "We would lead the same deuce of diamonds you led. Did South make a singleton ten?"

"No," was the reply. "My partner won the trick and gave me a club ruff. Later on he made a trump trick to set declarer two. This hand took place in an IMP match and believe it or not, cost us the match." Before you go any further see if you can figure out what happened at the other table. We'll give you a hint. We didn't figure it out.

What happened at the other table was that South responded one spade and West passed. North jumped to three clubs, South made a very bad bid of three notrump and West elected to double.

South was delighted. So delighted that he redoubled. West cashed his six diamond tricks to score 1,000 points, a net gain of 800 and 13 IMPs which gave his side the match.

Could you escape from this sinking car?

Read this emergency plan of action from the Shell Answer Man

The Shell Answer Man

Believe it or not, accidents like this happen to more than 3000 drivers a year.

But as the stunt driver in this picture knows, if you stay calm and know how to react—you've got a good chance of survival.

What's your best bet if your car's plunged into deep water? Climb out the window as fast as you can.

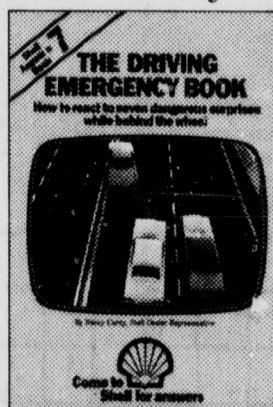

Most cars will float for a few seconds to several minutes. Use that time to escape before it goes under. Power windows can short-circuit in the water, so open them right away.

If you can't get out the window, try the door. At first, water pressure will hold it closed. But as the car fills, the pressure equalizes and the door should open.

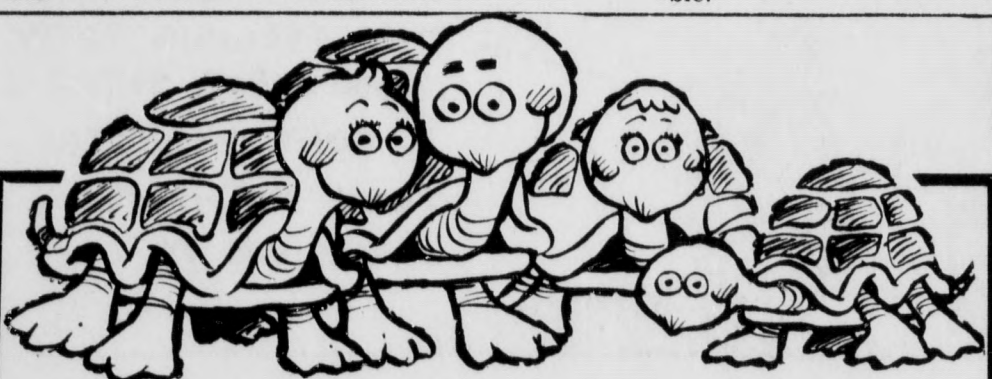

But remember this: don't wait. If you can get out the window, the door is only the second-best way out.

You'll find answers to more sudden surprises behind the wheel in "The Driving Emergency Book." For a free copy write Shell Oil Company, P.O. Box 61609, Houston, Texas 77208.

Growing call to ordain women

NEW YORK (AP) — A growing aggregation of Roman Catholic groups are challenging the Vatican's insistence that only males are eligible for the priesthood, and that women must be kept out of it.

The Church's U.S. bishops are expected to echo the Vatican's position at their meeting in Chicago, May 3-5.

The reasoning behind the Vatican's statement of Jan. 27, was that women can't be priests because Jesus was a man and priests must have that "natural resemblance."

It's just good common sense to want a car you can depend on. Toyota builds reliable cars. That's how we made our reputation.

But I like soccer, dad

On Sports

What does Fred Biletnikoff's son and daughter and Al Attles' son have in common?

All three of them play in youth soccer leagues. That in a nutshell may foretell the future of sports in this country.

Where football, basketball and baseball have dominated the sport pages of the country's newspapers for the entire century there's little doubt that soccer is THE sport of the future in this country.

Biletnikoff and Attles' offspring aren't the only children of professional sports stars to tune in to soccer.

It actually was all started by Kyle Rote Jr. The son of former New York Giant football star Kyle Rote SR is one of the top players for Dallas of the North American Soccer League.

This may be just the beginning. Soccer is a sport where size is not important. Quickness, agility and just plain guts are the most important assets of a soccer player. Thus, more kids are able to participate in the sport and this will eventually cause a dramatic upsurge in interest in the sport in this country.

It's happening already. The San Jose Earthquakes draw better than the Oakland A's or the San Francisco Giants.

In their third game of the season last Saturday the 'Quakes dumped Seattle 2-0 before a capacity house of over 17,000 people.

Meanwhile, up in Oakland the A's played before a mere 5,254 fans against the Chicago White Sox.

Instead of flocking to see Vida Blue and John (The Count) Montefusco pitch, sports fans are going to Spartan Stadium in San Jose to see the 'Quakes and star Ilija Mitic perform. Mitic, who is close to becoming the first NASL player to score 100 goals in the leagues' history, is a drawing card by himself.

Mitic and his mates stand a good chance of defending their Southern Division championship, particularly if they stay healthy. When fans can watch a division champion in action why go see two second-rate baseball teams with few "name stars"?

The 'Quakes' future looks golden, particularly since Spartan Stadium is being enlarged.

Pretty soon the Earthquakes could be playing in front of crowds of 30,000 and more.

If the good citizens of San Jose and Santa Clara County want it a huge 50,000 - 60,000 - seat stadium could be built. The Santa Clara Valley has the population (over 1,200,000) and the economic growth to pull the feat off. It's all up to the people of that area.

A bond to raise money for a big stadium in San Jose was defeated several years ago in the midst of the recession. Now, however, with the economy of the county booming again an elaborate stadium is feasible if not probable for San Jose.

If a large stadium is ever built in San Jose that would be the icing on the cake for the 'Quakes.

Many of the players on the team feel they could fill a stadium of 30,000-40,000 right now.

That's not surprising. And if the stadium is built people would pack the place like they do now for the Oakland Raiders.

It would indeed be ironic if the pendulum swung all the way around for the Raiders.

When the American Football League was started in 1960 the Raiders used to play before crowds of 8,000 or less in Kezar Stadium.

With the frantic rise in soccer popularity in this country the Raiders (and the 49ers) could be playing in front of crowds like that again in the near future.

For Pete, this is it

SAN FRANCISCO — Pete Ranzany, the World Boxing Council's No. 5 rated welterweight, is frank about how much his fight next Wednesday with Bruce Finch means to his hopes for a title shot.

"If I lose, it drops me out of title contention," the 24-year-old Sacramento fighter said Thursday, admitting at the same time that a win won't necessarily guarantee him a match-up with WBC champion Carlos Palomino.

"I consider myself the No. 1 contender," he said smiling. "But I guess there are three or four other guys who think they should be No. 1 too."

"We're ready for a title shot," said Joey Lopes, a onetime top-rated boxer and Ranzany's manager. "But we've got to keep fighting. We've got to keep busy until we get one."

Ranzany pits his 30-1, 24 knockout, record against Finch, a 23-year-old from Milwaukee, Wis., who claims an 18-0-1 record, the draw coming in his first pro fight.

Ranzany has had only four fights outside of Sacramento. Finch has fought only once outside of Wisconsin. Both said they knew virtually nothing about the other.

"All I know is that he's shorter than I am," said the 5-foot, 11-inch Ranzany of his 5-7½ opponent, "but I like to fight short people because it gives me a reach advantage."

Finch's manager, Nathaniel Grayes, said he accepted the bout with the locally popular, highly regarded Ranzany because it offers Finch a chance to prove himself outside of Wisconsin.

"He has been kept almost hidden for quite a while," said Grayes. "Now he'll get a chance to show what he can do."

Finch, a teacher's aide when he isn't boxing, took a decision victory over Tyrone Phillips in his last outing March 26. Ranzany's last bout was a March 11 decision over Julio Gomez.

Andujar startles Giants, 3-1

SAN FRANCISCO — Most major league ball-players moan and groan about playing conditions at Candlestick Park.

Not Joaquin Andujar, 24-year-old righthanded pitcher for the Houston Astros, who notched a 3-1 victory over the Giants Thursday afternoon before a sparse turnout of 3,153 fans.

Joaquin had reason to enjoy the whole scene. He had entered the contest with a whopping 5.57 earned run average and 1-1 record. He went 8½ innings, allowing no earned runs before giving way to reliever Joe Sambito in the ninth. All five Giant hits were off Andujar, three by the Giants' new shortstop Tim Lincecum and two by outfielder Darrell Evans.

An error by Foli in the second allowed Jose Cruz to reach base with one away and then Bob Watson tied into a John Montefusco offering and sent the ball over the center field fence for a 2-0 Houston advantage.

In the Astro fifth, Julio Gonzalez singled. He went all the way to third on a passed ball and came in on Art Howe's sacrifice fly to left.

San Francisco's lone run came home in the seventh when Evans wound up at second after a two-base error by shortstop Gonzalez. Willie McCovey's ground ball to first moved Evans to third when he trotted in on Jack Clark's sacrifice fly to deep to Cesar Cedeño.

The Giants made things interesting in the ninth when they forced Astro skipper Bill Virdon to yank Andujar in favor of pitcher Sambito after Foli had a lead-off single and Evans connected for a one-baser one out later. Sambito got the once mighty McCovey on a swinging third strike.

Then Virdon brought in righthander Ken Forsch to pitch to Clark and Kenny got Jack to fly out to center.

Montefusco, who worked the first six innings for San Francisco, saw his record even out at 2-2. The Count yielded six hits, struck out five and walked two.

Andujar told reporters, "Naturally I was glad to win today. But I was more happy for our team."

The Houstonians had been having their troubles before coming to Candlestick. But they took the series against the Giants, two games to one.

Joaquin said softly, "My best pitch today was the fast ball. And this ball park doesn't bother me. If you're in the major leagues you have to forget such things as the wind and the weather. Anyway I like the baseball fans in San Francisco. They gave me good applause."

J.R. Richard, the talkative Astro hurler, echoed Andujar's sentiments saying, "That's right, they are great fans here in San Francisco."

The Giants must start winning at home soon if they are to have any people out to watch them. San Francisco is 1-5 in Candlestick heading into tonight's 7:30 o'clock contest with the struggling Philadelphia Phillies.

Righthander Jim Barr will toe the rubber for the Giants with Steve Carlton, the veteran lefthander to pitch for the Phillies. The rest of the Phillie series will see Ed Halicki pitching for SF Saturday against Randy Lerch and Lynn McGlothen on Sunday against Philly's Larry Christenson.

Third sacker Bill Madlock's four-game hitting string came to an end Thursday as Houston pitchers stopped the former Cub in four times at bat. Twice he grounded into double plays.

Teddy's suing Bowie

ATLANTA — The president of the American League testified Thursday that baseball Commissioner Bowie Kuhn did not exceed his authority in suspending Atlanta Braves owner Ted Turner for one year because of an alleged violation of free-agent recruiting rules.

The suspension, coupled with an order relieving the Braves of their first-round amateur draft choice, was "severe, but I don't think under the circumstances ... they were too harsh," said Leland S. MacPhail Jr.

Kuhn suspended Turner in December for violating his directive forbidding club owners to talk about free agent players' salaries before the free agent draft Nov. 4.

The baseball commissioner held that Turner's cocktail party remark Oct. 20 to San Francisco Giants owner Bob Lurie that he would outbid him for the services of outfielder Gary Matthews violated the directive.

MacPhail was called to the stand by Kuhn's attorneys to testify as a member of the major league association's executive council and as a member of the group's player relations committee.

Turner, a flamboyant yachtsman who bought the National League Braves in 1976, contends he made the remark in jest and that he has since apologized for it, but only because he considered it to be a "social gaffe."

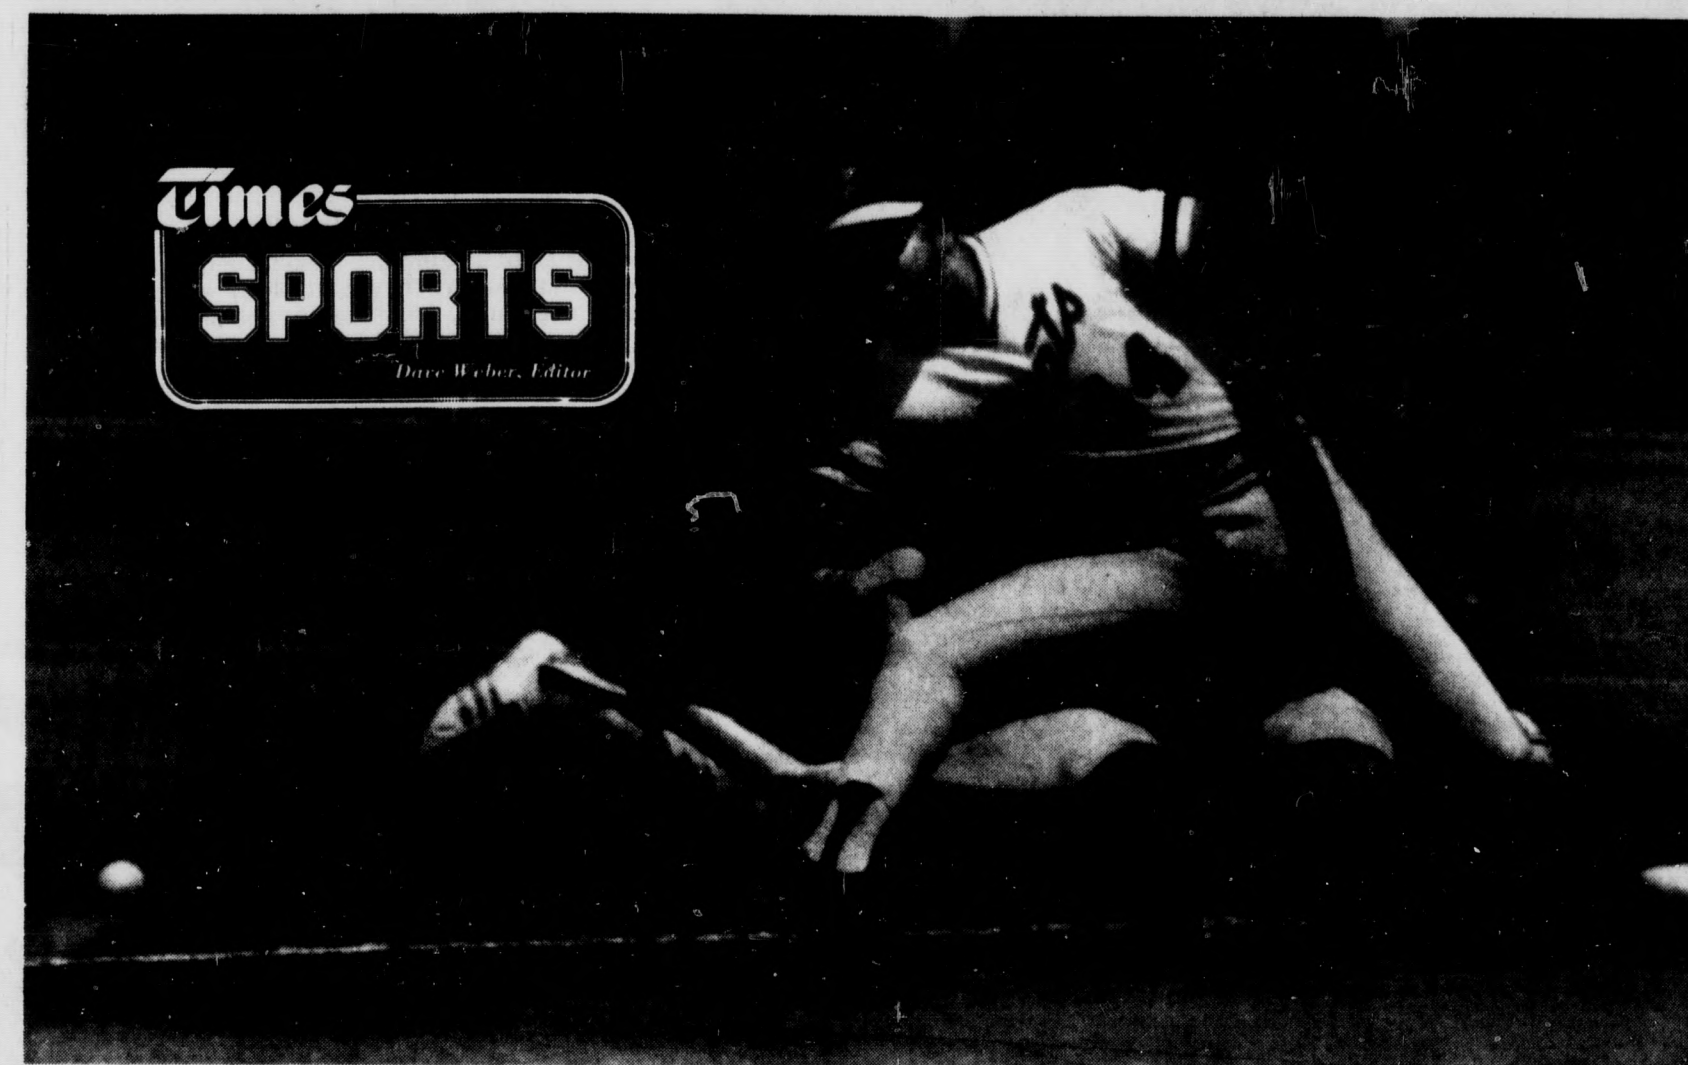

During the morning session of the informal hearing, the brash millionaire responded to one round of cross-examination from Kuhn attorney Richard J. Wertheimer by declaring, "After this is over, you keep that up and you'll get a knuckle sandwich."

U.S. District Court Judge Newell Edenfield took no notice of the remark, which Turner later said he meant "facetiously." Wertheimer, asked if he took it seriously, replied, "No comment."

MacPhail's comments came in response to examination by Kuhn's attorneys and to questioning from Edenfield, who earlier in the day raised sharp questions about Kuhn's authority.

The issue was whether Kuhn, by directive, could extend to the free-agent draft the same "tampering" rules that prohibit club owners from negotiating with players under contract to another team without the other team's consent.

Stretch, the Giants' Willie McCovey stretches for this throw in yesterday's win.

Gossage says he likes 'em tight

NEW YORK — Don't misunderstand, but Pittsburgh Pirates reliever Rich Gossage loves tight ball games when the enemy starts to rally. That's because it usually means he'll get a chance to do his thing.

"I love being a reliever," said Gossage, one of the best in the business at his specialty. "I thrive on the pressure. I love to come into a game in a tight situation, with the ball game on the line. The adrenaline really starts flowing."

Gossage has been at both ends of the pitching spectrum. He was the Fireman of the Year in the American League with the Chicago White Sox in 1975 when he won nine games in relief and saved a league - leading 26 others. He appeared in 62 games that season for Manager Chuck Tanner with a slightly sensational 1.84 earned run average.

Then came 1976, when Tanner moved to Oakland and the White Sox decided that Gossage ought to be a starter instead. He was somewhat less successful in that role, but then the whole Chicago club was no ball of fire last season, either.

Tanner switched to Pittsburgh last winter and when the Pirates swung a major winter trade for Gossage and Terry Forster, the two Chicago pitchers knew they were headed back to the bullpen.

"When Chuck called to tell me about the trade, he said, 'Guess where you're going?' I didn't have to. I knew what he had in mind," said Gossage.

For Gossage, the move to Pittsburgh was like being rescued.

"Look around this dressing room," he said. "This is like an All-Star team compared to Chicago. With the White Sox, you knew we weren't going anywhere. You just tried to stay in a good frame of mind. Here, there's a chance to win a pennant."

No team has ever won a flag without a bullpen stopper. And that's what Gossage's role will be with the Pirates. The starting jobs belong to other people. Gossage is Tanner's trouble shooter in relief.

"It's great as far as I'm concerned," said Gossage. "I never liked sitting around for five days between starts. This way, I can pitch almost every day. I come to the park and I know there's a chance I'll be in the game. When I was starting, it was boring between turns."

There's very little chance for him to be bored now. He is Tanner's No. 1 reliever and he usually arrives with the game on the line.

"That's what I like," he said.

"That's the challenge ... the fun of it. I missed that when I was starting."

Gossage describes himself as a power pitcher. "I challenge the hitter," he said. "It's me against him."

So far, Gossage has been winning the show-downs. "I've really been psyched up out there," he said. "Sometimes, I'm so pumped up, I almost get carried away."

The Pirates think he'll carry away some ball games for them, too.

Ventura's triple key

A triple by Donna Ventura and a two run error were the big blows as American Pool Sweeps defeated SRO's 7-4 in. Livermore Area Recreation and Park District "C" league women's softball action, Wednesday.

Ventura's three bagger was followed by an error which scored her, and in the next inning two runs crossed the plate on another miscue. Two singles in the first inning accounted for the other pair of runs for the winners.

Five runs in the final frame powered Kavanagh Liquors to a 13-10 win over Pizza Arcade in a "B" league contest.

Kavanagh led 8-0 through three innings but Pizza Arcade chipped away at the lead until it was tied at 8-8 going into the sixth frame. In that inning two errors and four walks helped Kavanagh to score the eventual winning runs while Arcade came back with two in the bottom of the sixth.

In a free wheeling game, C & C Beauty scored 16 runs on just 10 hits for a 16-7 victory over Bob's Babes. The "B" league game saw the winners jump out to a 12-1 lead after just two innings and coast from there, as Bob's Babes didn't have enough firepower to come from such a great deficit.

Brian McSharry clared 13-5 to st a Granada High school record in the pole vault, but th Mats couldn't compound McSharry's success as Dublin High swept to a 78-58 East Bay Athletic League track win yesterday in Livermore.

Livermore, meanwhile, rolled over Foothill in both boys and girls action, beating the Falcon boys, 105-22, and downing the distaffers, 68-20.

Bob Churchill soared to another fine height, 6-7½, in the high jump for the Cowboys while Paula Ng won both the 110 low hurdles and long jump for the 'Pokettes.

Ng sailed 17-4½ in the long jump and cleared the hurdles in a time of 15.7.

The Gals' printing corps held them up once again in the meet, braking away from the Matadors Midway through the meet after winning key races.

However, the biggest difference for Dublin came in the field events, where they won the long jump, triple jump, shot put and discus to pull away from the Matadors.

Dublin's 440 relay team of Chuck Gangnuss, Jim Boulware, Mark O'Hara and Jon Batchelor returned to fine form with a swift 43.8 clocking.

"We had a good time in the 440 relay," mentioned Dublin coach Tom Cathcart, "and they eased up the last five yards."

Boulware won the 100 and 220 with times of 10.1 and 24.2. The 220, however, was marked incorrectly before the meet and actually turned out to be ten yards longer than it should have been.

So, Boulware's effort would have probably hit the high 22's with the right distance.

Gangnuss recorded an excellent clocking in the 330 low hurdles but slipped below his best in the 120 highs. His time of 38.3 in the lows was impressive in that it beat his nearest competitor, teammate Boulware, by .8 of a second. Granada's Andy Heath, figured to be Gangnuss' toughest competition in the 330 lows, disappointed with a 39.9.

Gangnuss' 120 high hurdles time was 14.6.

Bob Klein heaved th shot put 43-9½ while Futak had a lifetime best in the discus with a 132-7 toss.

Granada swept the 880, as Joel Strickland, Bill Schofield and Bruce Boer finished within two seconds of each other. The Mats, obviously dominant in the distance races, swept the mile and two-mile with Jim Hunter taking the shorter and Ed Jessop the longer race.

Jeff Barnes leaped 41-4½ for a triple jump win for Dublin while Jay Littlpag took the high jump in a 6-0 marking.

The Granada frosh-soph team continued their rampage through the EBAL, staying undefeated with a 92-40 win. Chuck Whelan, Rob Jamison were double winners while David Ridgwell ran on both winning relay teams and took first in the 220. Marvin Shawn ran a blistering 9.6 in the 70 high hurdles for Dublin.

Granada's girls eased into a tie-cinching for the Girls championship with a methodical 63-45 triumph.

Kathy Honour was a standout, winning the long jump, 110 high hurdles and 100 yard dash. Her time of 15.8 in the 110 lows was a new school record.

The Gal now have a chance to grab a share of the East Bay Athletic League track title if they tie or defeat San Ramon in a crucial meet next week. Each team has one loss, as do Amador and Livermore, who will also be squaring off for a piece of the pie next Thursday.

Warriors hope magic lasts

INGLEWOOD — There was finally a Warriors' game at the Oakland Coliseum Tuesday night.

Long-time Golden State fans could finally feel at home with their favorites, at last recognizable as they scratched, slapped and fast broke their way to a 114-103 win over the Los Angeles Lakers to even the teams' NBA Western Conference semi-final play-off series at two games apiece.

But whether those 13,155 roaring humans — turned — banshees will get more than one last gasping peak at their heroes this season is dubious. Something has to give.

Game five is tonight at the Forum here, a site wherein the Lakers have not been sunk in 12 games. Since the bell rang way back in October, Los Angeles has lost here only four times.

Granted, the Warriors have a good thing going at the Coliseum, where the Angelenos have gone home empty-handed since the 1973 play-offs, a span of 16 games. Despite the back-to-back Warrior victories, however, the Lakers still maintain the home court advantage for game seven, should the series go that far — and with the home court edge holding true, it probably will.

So, the Warriors have to break service. Can they? "I'm not thinking about how we are going to do in the fifth game," said Laker coach Jerry West after Tuesday's debacle. "I'm just happy to be going home and the team will be happy to get back to the home court. They know what they have to do." Warrior forward Jamaal Wilkes, who has come on to star in the series for Golden State despite admitting he'd rather be Laker forlittle action in the preliminary series with Detroit, Wilkes led the Warriors with 27 points Tuesday and grabbed six rebounds. Of his resurgence, the 6-8 toe Friday, but West isn't so sure. Cazzie Russell is bothered by a muscle strain. And that doesn't even touch on the fact that Kermit Washington is out for the season and Kareem Abdul-Jabbar is still suffering from constant migraine headaches.

Yet, with injuries of his own to worry about, Golden State coach Al Attles, who lost both his "power" forwards (Derrek Dickey and Dwight Davis) to season-ending injuries, doesn't pity Los Angeles.

"Sure, LA is banged up a little," he conceded. "But any team that starts off with Kareem is going to be all right. We know what it is to have injuries and it's a tough time to run into that problem, but they still make the game interesting with the big fellow in there."

Interesting and more of a head ache for guys like Attles. Tuesday, Abdul-Jabbar scored a series-high 41 points, grabbed 18 rebounds and blocked a couple of shots for good measure. But, says Wilkes, don't blame Ray and rookie Robert Parish for all of Kareem's seemingly effortless floor show.

"Jabbar likes certain spots to shoot from, so we try to take them away with team defense. It's not just the centers' job to stop Kareem, it's the team's job," Wilkes said. "Kareem is going to score his points, but we've got to take away his easy shots."

Another man getting a ton of credit for LA's success in the early part of the series is guard Don Chaney, who'd made Smith, the Warriors' second biggest scoring threat, look like a little lost schoolkid in the first two games.

Though he had another relatively poor shooting night — going four for 13 and scoring just 12 points — Smith seemed more aware Tuesday and contributed to the flow of the Warrior offense.

He says of his duel with Chaney, late of the defunct Spirits of St. Louis, "If it were just Chaney and me, I think I would score some and he would stop me some. What makes him so tough is that name again (there's that name again) helps him out.

"The defense is LA's, not Chaney's." And tonight, the home court is LA's. Game time is 8:30 p.m. with the game broadcast over KNBR-680 and possibly to be telecast over KPIX-channel 5.

LA needs to regroup now

LOS ANGELES — Jerry West's Los Angeles Lakers return to the friendly confines of their Forum Friday night with their advantage wiped out in the best-of-seven National Basketball Association quarterfinal playoffs against the Golden State Warriors.

"The players know what they have to do," declared West, whose team built a 2-0 record at home and then lost two straight in Oakland.

"We just weren't good up there, but I can assure you of one thing: We will be better at home." The status of injured guard Lucius Allen remained problematical and the Lakers appear to need him badly now. Allen dislocated a toe in the first five minutes of the playoff opener and hasn't played since, except for a brief appearance in the third game. One of his replacements, Bo Lamar, was hurt in the third game and hasn't returned to top shape.

Cazzie Russell, the man who has to guard the Warriors' high scoring Rick Barry, also is hampered — with a bruised thigh. Russell can be counted on to start, although he saw only 25 minutes action in game No. 4.

Barry, with two 40-point performances in the series, scored 26 in his latest outing, which he described as the best for the Warriors in the series to date.

Jamaal Wilkes, the former UCLA All-American who starts at the other Warriors forward position, said the pressure has switched to the Lakers in the 2-2 deadlocked series.

"If they don't win Friday, it's looking bad for them because we've had good success with them in Oakland. But if we lose, I wouldn't want to write it off because we've had good success with them in our home games."

The Lakers haven't won in Oakland in four years covering 15 games and dropped 109-105 and 114-103 counts in this playoff after winning 115-106 and 95-86 in the opening two games.

The Warriors still haven't stopped Kareem Abdul-Jabbar and he again holds the key to the Lakers' chances. In the four games so far, Abdul-Jabbar has averaged 34 points, 17 rebounds, five assists and four blocked shots.

He scored 41 points in the fourth game but had little, if any, support from his teammates.

"We played good defense and got the ball upcourt quickly which is our game," Barry declared.

Charles Dudley, effective in a reserve role, added, "They missed a lot more shots and that gives us a chance to run."

The Warriors have virtually abandoned the strategy of using their two big men, Clifford Ray and Robert Parish, in the lineup at the same time since that slowed down the Golden State attack too much.

With the Friday night game scheduled for national television, the tipoff is slated for 8:30 p.m. PDT with a Forum sellout crowd anticipated.

Sixers steal Celtic script

"We played our type of game, fast-breaking, running, scoring, opportunity shots... We hustled, worked, did what we were supposed to do to prevent their momentum from gathering."

It sounded like the Boston Celtics' copyrighted formula for success — but the speaker was Julius Erving, one of the ringleaders of Philadelphia's playground-style gang — and it was Erving and the 76ers who used that formula against the Celtics themselves.

And because of Wednesday night's 110-91 runaway over the Celts, the 76ers have a chance to knock the defending National Basketball Association champions out of the playoffs Friday in Boston, the sixth game of the best-of-seven series.

In Friday night's other two games, Washington is at Houston and Golden State is at Los Angeles, each series tied 2-2. Portland, leading 3-1, visits Denver Sunday.

Doug Collins' 23 points, 22 by Erving and 20 by Steve Mix carried the 76ers, the new breed, past the Celtics, the old guard. What really did Boston in was a first-half spurt by Philadelphia in which it outscored Boston 33-8 to build a 62-44 halftime lead...that and Philadelphia's 51 per cent fieldgoal shooting to the Celtics' 39 per cent.

"We missed shots that we should have made, and that's it," Boston Coach Tom Heinsohn said.

Rudy Tomjanovich of Houston said the Rockets are in solid shape, having regained the home-court edge they had lost to the Bulls earlier in their series.

Jamaal Wilkes...back in form ward Jamaal Wilkes by next season, pointed out the obvious.

"We're going to have to win one in LA to get through this series," he said once again. "I hope it's on this trip, but I'll take either trip for a win."

Wilkes, rounding back into shape after a troublesome period caused by a heart defect in his infant daughter, added, "It would be nice to win down there and then be able to win the series at home in front of our fans on Sunday."

After seeing relatively

UCLA grad said, "I was able to get going tonight and come up with my shot."

"We had five men (Wilkes, Rick Barry, Clifford Ray, Phil Smith and Sonny Parker) in double figures tonight, so that means we were moving the ball and hitting the open man. When we do that, we are tough to beat."

The Lakers may not be beaten on the scoreboard, but physically they have taken a terrible beating in the series.

New Dublin Bowl opens

A couple of Oakland Raider football players will join with one of sport's most accomplished couples when the latest addition to the glutted valley bowling market, the Dublin Bowl, opens this weekend.

Pete Banaszak and Dave Dalby of the Raiders will be on hand Saturday afternoon while Dave and Judy Soutar of Grandview, Mo. will make two appearances Sunday, joined by Bob and Betty Morris of Stockton.

The new 40-lane facility at 6750 Regional St. quietly joined the expanded Granada Bowl and the new Amador Lanes is the sudden competition for the local bowling dollar last Saturday. Managing director Jerry Marsh decided to hold off the grand opening shebang a week to make sure most of the bugs were out of the new operation.

Ceremonies tonight will mark the official opening of the bowl with numerous state, county and local officials, bowling industry leaders, league officials and other dignitaries expected to be on hand for the ribbon cutting. Maid of Dublin Angela Rosas will represent the community's chamber of commerce.

Tomorrow, from 1-5 p.m., Banaszak and Dalby will be at the lanes to meet people, sign autographs and pass out Dublin Bowl frisbees to younger members of the gathering.

From 2-4 p.m. Saturday, the Soutars, two of pro bowling's brightest names, will conduct a bowling clinic. Judy, twice named women bowler of the year, is now the top name on the Burnswick Advisory Staff of Champions and will appear in that capacity.

At 7 p.m. Sunday, the Soutars will take on the Morris in a husband and wife exhibition match.

Bob is a rookie on the PBA tour while Betty has been women bowler of the year and was won six PWBA championships. She holds the record for a six-game series at 1564. Betty has bowled three sanctioned perfect games, three series over 700 and is a three time All-American. After the competition, drawings will be conducted to award door prizes donated by participating Dublin area merchants. Registration for the drawing will be taken throughout the weekend and winners need not be present to claim their prizes.

Burns scorches Houston field

HOUSTON — Big George Burns, who said he "came here to redeem myself," clipped five strokes off par with a solid 67 and tied quiet man Mark Hayes for the first-round lead Thursday in the $200,000 Houston Open golf tournament.

"I've had a lot of time to think about it," said Burns, a former Maryland football player who blew a chance to win his first pro title in this tournament a year ago. "I had a two-stroke lead with nine holes to go here last year, and I let it get away. It's past now. But I came here to redeem myself."

He took a major step in that direction with his solid, no-bogey effort over the 6,997-yard Woodlands Country Club course. Hayes, the soft-spoken winner of the prestigious Tournament Players Championship earlier this year, had to make seven birdies to match Burns' total.

For a while on the mild, sunny, breezy day, it appeared that neither of the leaders — nor anyone else — had a chance in the face of Jack Nicklaus' blazing start that carried him seven under par after 13 holes. A 65 or lower seemed not only possible but probable.

Little League round-up

Tigers rally, scalp Tribe, 17-10

Pleasanton American

Fourteen runs in the final three innings powered the Tigers to a 17-10 Pleasanton American Little League win over the Indians. Rich Orr had a triple and a home run for the Tigers, which accounted for four runs, and Tom Galbraith pounded out three doubles and had a pair of RBI for the winners.

For the Indians, John Hollen and Andre DePiano each had three hits in as many plate appearances, one of Hollen's safeties being a double.

The Indians scored just one run in the last three frames when the Tigers took control of the game.

AMERICAN MAJOR John Schwartzman and Dereck Moreno combined for a four hitter as the Tigers topped the Indians 4-1.

Brian Tudor and Dave Humphrey paced the winning offense with a triple and double, respectively. No Indian hitter had more than one hit, as the Tiger pitching duo spaced out the hits very well. Moreno was credited with the mound victory.

PALL 4A Tony Luppino scattered five hits while his teammates collected 10 as the Tigers thrashed the Indians 12-3.

The Tigers scored five times in the fourth frame to put the game out of reach, after having led only 3-2 through three innings.

Mike Hill and David Siranni each had two hits for the Tigers and winning pitcher Tony Luppino added a double. Chris Rudloff tripled and Don Nelson doubled for the Indians.

Dublin

DUBLIN MAJOR Despite a spectacular double play, the Indians bowed to the Giants, 14-5. Giant hurler Mike Curtis went all the way for the win while the Indians used three pitchers.

DUBLIN MINORS Pounding across 15 runs in the first inning, the Big Macs cruised to a 33-9 thumping of the Hot Wheels. Besides the huge total of runs, Kent Eggen's fine pitching performance was a highlight for the winners. Eggen went the distance for the win.

DUBLIN MAJOR Giant pitcher Jeff Cunningham struck out 11 and threw a four hit shutout as the Giants crushed the Royals 19-0.

Cunningham added four RBI to his slate, while Mike Curtis had three hits including a homer and Chris Davis was a perfect five-for-five at the plate.

DUBLIN MAJORS In another shutout, Royal pitcher Greg Ferreira allowed just five hits and fanned 10 as the Royals stopped the Dodgers 3-0. The Royals managed just three hits but were aided by a pair of Dodger errors.

DUBLIN MINORS A fast paced game saw the Stars beat the Pistons 11-6. Brian Snyder, Star hurler, earned the win while his counterpart Jimmy Berg struck out seven in suffering the loss.

DUBLIN TRAINING Robby Lindsey had five hits, two of them doubles, as the Tigers mauled the Sounders, 24-7. Scott Sherwood added another pair of two baggers and a single for the winners while Scott Bechler doubled twice for the Sounders.

DLNLL SENOIRS In a game that ended before the proverbial final out was recorded, Lone Star came out ahead of Geldertowners 7-3. The game was called in the bottom of the fifth inning with one out and two runs in and the bases loaded for Geldertowners.

George Yawornisky had two RBI and Chris Barbano a double for Lone Star.

Granada

GRANADA MINOR A game featuring more hits than errors saw the Yankees trip the Pirates 9-7. The Yanks committed three miscues while the Pirates had five errors.

Two runs in the fifth inning provided the winning margin for the Yankees, as Tim Corder had an RBI and Sean Alexander drilled a triple.

GRANADA MINOR Scoring all their runs early, the A's hung on to edge the Giants, 4-2. Olaf Reinwald had two hits and an RBI for the A's and Andy Brown and Mark Timm handled the mound chores for the winners. Larry Lopez drove in both of the Giants runs with a home run.

GRANADA MINOR A last inning, five run rally pushed the Cardinals to a 9-6 come from behind win over the Indians. Hetrick Magann was the victim of the late surge, which was aided by an Indian error.

Livermore

LNLL MAJORS Left-fielder Randy Bone made a difficult catch of a wind blown fly deep in left field to save a 4-3 win for Robbie Dalrymple and J. Sports Lettering over Ed Hutka. The defensive gem left the typing and winning runs stranded, as the bases were loaded at the time of the play.

Carl Campiotti had a double and triple for the losers, who outthit Lettering 10-6. Al Fontes doubled for the winners, driving in one run.

LNLL MINORS Exploding early, A & W Root Beer easily outdistanced Associated Professions, 18-2. A & W had three runs in the opening frame, scored seven times in the second inning and capped their scoring with an eight run outburst in inning three.

The early onslaught was fed in part by seven errors by the losers.

Charles Conaway and John Mottashed sparked the winning offense, accounting for 11 runs on five and six RBI respectively. Tim Reed and Ted Mohs split the two Associated runs batted in and Mohs played very well in the field.

Pleasanton National

NATIONAL AAA Nine fourth inning runs proved to be enough as the Padres pounded the Giants, 17-7.

Tim Mena was almost a one man show for the Padres. Mena, in addition to getting the pitching victory, had three hits and drove in a healthy six runs, nearly dismantling the Giants alone. Not to be outdone, Damon Schorno had four RBI and two doubles and Brent Gronley drove across three runs. Jeff Hill was a bright spot for the Giants, socking a pair of doubles in four trips to the plate.

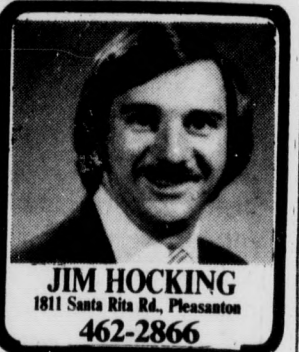

bottom of the seventh, the Padres beat the Giants 10-7. Tony Fisher got the win in the wild affair while Steve Kramer was tagged with the loss.

Troy Franey's triple was the big blow for the Padres while the Giant attack featured half a dozen two base hits, including two each by Ron Patrick and Todd Goluba and single doubles by Paul Penn and Shawn Jones.

Babe Ruth

RUTH 13 YEAR OLD The Giants and Dodgers played to a mirror image linescore as each team scored four runs, had three hits and made three errors. The run scoring innings were also very similar, as the Didders tallied one in the fourth, the Giants one in the fifth, the Dodgers pushed in three in the sixth and the Giants reciprocated in the seventh.

Even the pitchers names were the same, as Steve Sabo toiled seven innings for the Giants and Steve Fuller, you guessed it, did the same for the Dodgers.

Quality engineering at a reasonable price. Whirlwind II from Toro.

Toro introduces the second generation Whirlwind mower. This year Toro has made this high-quality machine an even better value. New engineering refinements have brought performance up. Yet Toro® has held prices down.

Modified engine. The workhorse of the Whirlwind II system is the modified air-cooled, 4-cycle Briggs & Stratton engine. It operates at a lower rpm to save on fuel and give you quieter performance.

Safer operation. Whirlwind II puts the emphasis on safety with an improved, flexible Rear Safety Shield. And a new starter lock-out mechanism on the self-propelled model helps guard against accidental starts while the mower is in gear.

You also get the convenience of fingertip start, a collapsible handle for easy storage and an air filter you snap on and off in seconds for quick cleaning.

Quick-Change bagging. The Whirlwind II dispersal chute has been modified to take an improved optional bagging attachment that can be emptied in seconds.

This new, improved Whirlwind II is available in three versions: the power-driven, 21-inch mower shown here and 19-inch or 21-inch hand-propelled models. See any of these versatile Whirlwind II mowers at your Toro dealer today.

Auto dealerships

Auto dealers from Livermore, Dublin, and Walnut Creek, who provide cars for use in high school driver education programs, received awards at a luncheon given by the California State Automobile Association (AAA) last week.

The CSAA awards recognize that the voluntary loan of dealership cars substantially contributes to traffic safety by enabling high school students to develop proficient skills through actual behind-the-wheel training.

The following dealerships received awards: Tri-Valley Datsun and Dunn Chevrolet, Inc., both of Livermore; Shamrock Ford, Inc., Dublin; and Toyota Walnut Creek, Inc., Walnut Creek.

International Harvester

Ken R. Franklin of Pleasanton has been appointed manager of personnel and planning at the International Harvester Oakland Agricultural Equipment Sales Region.

A native of Visalia, Franklin received his bachelor's degree in business administration at Cal Poly, San Luis Obispo, and joined IH in 1972. He has served as a zone parts manager, area manager, promotion supervisor on agricultural tractors and most recently as marketing planning manager, agricultural tractors.

The Franklins are residents of Pleasanton.

USE YOUR MASTER CHARGE OR BANKAMERICARD

A great sampler

PLEASANTON — Mae West once said, "Peel me a grape," but Jerry Beyer has an even better idea.

For 75 cents he will pour you samples from three different wines, taking the guesswork out of which wine will go best tonight with your trout almondine.

And then you can buy a bottle of the stuff, mostly in the $2 to $5 price range at his shop, Penny Lane.

Beyers has been in business here for a year and at his 401 Main St. location since Jan. 1 with a used book, records and tape store. Now he has added wine and imported beer tasting at the back of the little corner shop.

Beyer emphasizes this is not a bar and it never will evolve into one. He has been an amateur wine taster for 10 years and wants to share his knowledge with Valley residents. He offers the advantage of sampling the goods for a slight fee before buying; and there's no obligation even to buy.

Most of the wine stock is from Europe, though Pleasanton's Stony Ridge varieties and a Robert Mondavi also are on the shelves.

A reporter who unselfishly donated his palate for journalistic truth was treated to a wide variety of what's available at Penny Lane yesterday.

We talked about the character of a wine; one has more character than another. "That means," said Beyer, "that more stuff is happening on the tongue. The Moselle you tasted just sat there on the tongue, but this Krottenburunen (from Germany's Rhine area) brings out more cross tastes."

For those just beginning in wine tasting, one learns what can be done with different styles of winemaking and different varieties of grapes. After that, it's a matter of asking the question, did the maker of this wine do the job right or well, said Beyer.

So it went through temperate samples of three whites and three reds, concluding with a very nice Barbera from the Asti district of Italy. Unlike a lot of Barberas which almost tingle your tongue with its tannin (a resin in the wine), this one was very smooth on the tongue, had a nice feeling in the nose.

But the one wine the reporter really looks forward to after Beyer's description is a $100 bottle of German Trockenbeerenauslese which "is drunk by the Germans in a flowery field with someone of whom you think very highly. It has the delicate perfume of women you should have known. The perfume translates into flowers." It sounds like enough reason to fall in love again.

Dealers receive awards

LIVERMORE — Tri-Valley Datsun and Dunn Chevrolet, two Livermore auto dealerships who have loaned cars to the Livermore Unified School District driver training classes, recently received awards at a luncheon given by the California State Automobile Association.

The CSAA awards recognize that the voluntary loan of dealership cars substantially contributes to traffic safety by enabling high school students to develop proficient skills through actual behind-the-wheel training.

The awards were presented by George Willis, CSAA Livermore district manager. Assisting in the presentations was Livermore school superintendent Leo Croce.

Richert Redwood opens

Richert Redwood celebrated its grand opening recently at 5505 Sunol Boulevard, Pleasanton. On hand were Maid of Pleasanton Julie Hemming and Anne Richert as well as (in back row from left) Jim Root, Mayor Robert Philcox, Chamber of Commerce President Bill Hirst, and Tom Richert. Store hours will be from 8:30 a.m. to 5:30 p.m. Monday through Saturday and 10 a.m. to 2 p.m. Sunday. Phone is 846-0666.

Lights, camera, flush sewer

LIVERMORE — Television may be a boob tube to some, but it saved this city a big headache this week.

The public works department, routinely using television cameras to scan sewer lines, discovered a deteriorating line along P Street that if gone unchecked would soon overflow into the streets.

The section is between Third and Fourth streets.

"That sewer is in bad condition," said Public Works Director Dan Lee. "The pipe is breaking up, degenerating."

He described soil around the pipe caving in to fill the passageway and said his department will be starting on emergency work to replace the section in the near future.

Traffic will not be closed on that street while work is being done, Lee said.

"We ran a cable through the pipe and pulled the camera through," he added. "Above ground, in a truck, we watched a television monitor."

"We couldn't get the camera all the way through the pipe because of the soil seepage," said Lee.

Repair work will cost approximately $7-8,000.

"That television system gives us the ability to inspect the underground system we never had before," said Lee. The equipment is leased from a company in Fremont. Lee said purchase of a similar system would cost Livermore approximately $25,000.

East Bay Parks plans biology camp for youths at Sunol site

Know a boy or girl with a flair for science?

The East Bay Regional Park District will select 25 students, aged 11 to 15, for a one-week Biology Camp at Sunol Regional Wilderness.

Experts will teach the students about botany, entomology, herpetology, ornithology, mammalogy and geology, "providing them with an overall understanding of the ecology of the inner coast range," according to naturalist Steve Abbors of the EBRPD staff.

The fee for six days is $60. Several campships are available for qualified youngsters.

The campers will live outdoors at Camp Ohlone, one of the few remaining true wilderness areas in the Bay Area, situated "beyond the outback" from Sunol Regional Wilderness in southern Alameda County. The camp is at 1,600 feet in Alameda Creek Canyon on the Alameda - Santa Clara County line.

Applications may be obtained from Steve Abbors, Naturalist, Tilden Nature Area, Berkeley, CA, 94708, phone 525-2233.

"Campers will be selected on the basis of interest, aptitude in the natural sciences and most importantly, personal motivation," Abbors says. Questions on the brief application form include: "How do you spend your spare time?" "What projects would you like to attempt?"

Applicants chosen will be required to register, with a $25 non-refundable deposit. Deadline for the application is June 6.

Registration after being selected will also include a medical examination form.

Officials hit rest home racket in state capital crime session

A Los Angeles County District Attorney's office prosecutor has found that a growing number of rest homes, not only in her jurisdiction, but throughout the state are failing to provide diets prescribed by doctors for patients, are below standards for sanitation and have insufficient staff to adequately care for the personal hygiene of patients.

Aileen Adams, a former Nader Raider and now deputy city attorney in Los Angeles, called for implementation of enforcement committees in each county to work with rest or nursing homes found to be below standard.

Ms. Adams made her comments during a crime and rest homes panel discussion in Sacramento Wednesday. The discussion was one of a daily series being held this week as part of California's Forgotten Victims Week.

The week-long event was organized by the California District Attorneys Association, directed by George Nicholson, a former Dublin resident and senior trial lawyer in the Alameda County District Attorneys office.

Joining Ms. Adams on the crime and rest homes panel were Raymond Procnier, former director of the Adult Authority and now chief deputy director of the state Department of Health, James Lorenz of the San Diego County District Attorney's office, prosecutor Edward Feldman of the Los Angeles County D.A.'s office and John Van de Kamp, district attorney for Los Angeles County.

Adams recently urged development of a model nursing home system during testimony before Alameda County Supervisors. The county has been the scene of numerous rest or nursing home violations in recent months. Notice of penalties to five such homes in southern Alameda County were announced within the past week.

Considered one of the most outstanding and active prosecutors of rest home cases in California, Adams said she is exploring the possibility of getting special Department of Motor Vehicle tags or cards to indicate that handicapped passengers use the cars.

Those tags and cards which go on dashboards will be required to avoid ticketing or towing if the resolution is passed by city council.

The placards, 6x12 inch blue cards are available at the DMV offices in Livermore for $4, with no expiration date. They are for use by disabled passengers only.

Regular license plates can be substituted for the special ones which precede with Disabled Person codes such as DPX, DPY, WDP or ZDP, according to assistant DMV manager Sandy Bassett.

—by Neil Heilpern

Raymond Procnier

Adams said the maximum fine per count is $500, plus three years summary probation.

She said her investigations had uncovered many cases of administering of incorrect drugs, improper financial record keeping, overcrowded conditions and even a case of a forced prostitution ring within one nursing home.

Feldman said that attorneys for rest homes brought up on charges will often admit a violation took place, for example, improper dispensing of medication. "But the attorney will add," Feldman said, "how could one instance of incorrect dispensing of a drug endanger the health of the patient?" ... virtually challenging the enforcement agency to try and prove otherwise.

Feldman also spoke of patient trust fund abuses. Procnier reiterated his call for immediate withdrawal of Medi-Cal privileges upon conviction.

Asked how many investigators his department has to look into cases cropping up throughout the state, Procnier said he had 116 detailed to investigation assignments and a total of 500 in the department who are licensed to participate in investigations.

An afternoon session on crime and its impact on minorities, moderated by Judge Dion G. Morrow of the Compton Judicial District, brought forth countless startling statistics including the number of murders in Santa Clara County for 1976.

Ulysses Beasley, a homicide case prosecutor in the county district attorney's office, said the average murder case filings was three or four when he joined the department 11 years ago. In '76, there were 51 murder case filings in the county.

National parks brace for summer

SAN FRANCISCO (AP) — Like generals before a battle, top Western officers of parks, forests and deserts are preparing for a vacation time in the midst of critical drought.

The 237 parks of the National Park Service' Western Region and the California State Park System alone accounted for nearly 90 million visitor-days last year, and most estimates are on the rise for this year.

Behind all the planning is the devout hope that America's natural lands, parched by two straight years of drought, will come through the season intact, unblemished by the curse of forest wildfire.

So far, there are no plans to shut down any major areas administered by the National Park Service, the National Forest Service, the Bureau of Land Management or the California state parks. But that possibility lurks among protected colonies of wildlife and stands of precious timber.

"If necessary, we will close some of the parks," warned NPS Western Region spokesman Edwin Winge.

The National Park Service, whose Western Region controls 37 parks and other NPS designations in California, Arizona, Nevada and Hawaii, puts California at the head of the drought danger list. One official estimate said:

"California is experiencing the worst drought in its history, that is to say the lowest snowpack of record, the lowest (water) discharge of record, and the lowest moisture of record. The long range forecast calls for more of the same..."

Winge said all the agencies which control the areas millions of Americans count on for their recreation time are working together in the emergency.

"Education is our problem," he said in an interview.

All visitors to the national parks this year can expect to be handed cautionary leaflets about fires, with water conservation the watchword everywhere.

"There isn't a park I know of right now that isn't going to have enough water for visitors," he said. "We're going to have an adequate supply of water for drinking and cooking; there will be restrictions, probably, on showers. All will be equipped with flow restrictors."

Bill Whalen, general manager of the 27-mile-long Golden Gate Recreation Area, said, "I think we have a sophisticated enough park user to be able to swallow the bitter year if things arrive at the point that the parks have to be closed."

Putting in a word for his own jurisdiction, much of which borders the Pacific Ocean, Whalen added, "Fortunate enough for us we have a great alternative, our beaches."

At Yosemite National Park in California, which hosted 2.8 million visitors last year, an "extreme fire danger" exists and activities in some of the most splendid backcountry in America are in for severe controls.

No moves to close parts of Yosemite have been announced, but it is likely that if matters get dry enough whole sections of the park will be shut down, probably north of Tioga Road.

Haleakala National Park on Maui, among the four national parks in Hawaii, is undergoing one of its driest spells in history, park superintendent Hugo Huntzinger wrote regional headquarters in San Francisco.

"Other than one brief storm in September, the crater district of Haleakala has been without precipitation since May 1976," Huntzinger said. "If present trends continue, an already critical situation will become desperate."

He suggested either buying or leasing a tanker to haul water to the spectacular moon-scape preserve.

At Arizona's Grand Canyon National Park, which had three million visitors last year, the single reliable flow of potable water is rated as "definitely reduced." Park officials fear if that source breaks down they might have to turn to a source of poor quality water which is subject to contamination by human waste.

In this situation, they said, the popular Indian Gardens would have to be closed to hikers and mule parties, a major blow to park resources.

As a byproduct of the drought, Lake Mead National Recreation Area is getting ready for a bumper crop of tourists because it is rich in water from the Colorado River. The management at Lake Mead is pleading for more funds to handle the surplus, expected to be considerably more than the 1.3 million tourists posted last year.

The Park Service has reported a run at some concessions on the small stoves which use white gas, kerosene or propane, an indication that outdoor lovers understand open fires are going to be taboo.

The Bureau of Land Management, which administers a fifth of all of California, has emphasized its concern over fire danger by asking Congress for an extra $4 million to preserve livestock grazing, wildlife and recreation in its mainly desert jurisdiction.

"Most of the BLM land in California's Central Valley, the coastal ranges and sagebrush ranges of the northeast part of the state show drastic reductions of forage, and livestock use could be curtailed up to 50 per cent," says an announcement.

The BLM, which got a freak ton of rain on the normally arid Southern California desert this year while the north went dust-dry, boasted that it's permitted an extra 31,200 sheep to graze in the high desert.
